The Harriman National Bank in New York lent $200,000, without collateral security, to the striking coal miners to help them buy food for men without work and tents for families dispossessed. Whoever made that loan had intelligence. It was the decent thing to do. The mine workers will pay their debts. It was also good business, and very sensible and intelligent as a Bolshevik antidote, much sought after just now.

One demonstration of magnificent American efficiency in war ends. Yesterday Chairman Lasker, of the Shipping Board, sold the American fleet of 226 wooden ships for $750,000.

Those ships cost, in the days of high patriotism and $14-a-year efficiency, $300,000,000. The sale therefore realized something less than one-third of one cent on the dollar.

In New York last Monday the New York Edison Company provided a dinner. Thomas A. Edison ate it to commemorate the fortieth anniversary of central electric illumination. Forty years ago Edison and other workmen, in overalls, gathered at No. 257 Pearl street, threw the switch that started light from New York's first central power station.

How much does the light mean to the world now? Slowly men get what they need. First, letters with which to write, then presses and movable type with which to print, then light to use the night hours in reading.

And all depends on the real plant, that of THOUGHT, with the brain for its power house.

Charles M. White of Cleveland says the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, besides buying an office building for two and a half millions, is buying West Virginia and Kentucky coal mines with capacity above six thousand tons a day.

The engineers will sell coal to workers in the big cities and pay their miners well.

Several hundred engineers will own in the ground about two hundred millions dollars' worth of coal.

That is the way for organized labor to show intelligence and power. Do what other successful men do—get something and develop it. A few coal mines and big buildings owned by labor will have more effect than any number of sad stories and pitiful ap-

DRY AGENT RAN FROM RAZORS

Series of Fights in Providence When Federal Officer Returned to Renew War

Providence, Sept. 13.—Disguised as a German house painter and wearing overalls and jumper much covered with paint, "Izzy" Einstein, prohibition raider extraordinary, started out today to finish his job of cleaning up Providence rum-sellers.

"Izzy" was overjoyed when he wandered into a saloon and secured a drink. But his joy turned to almost instant grief when the bartender's massive fist crashed against "Izzy's" rather prominent nose and started a claret stream flowing.

With a body guard of six agents following at a respectable distance behind, Izzy entered the saloon of

GREEN ACCUSES TAGUE

Charges Fraud in Congressional Contest; Plans Fight in Court

Accusing Congressman Peter F. Tague of violating the ballot laws by carrying ballots through the streets of Charlestown and Tague workers of preventing voters from balloting, Senator Thomas H. Green, Lomasney candidate for Democratic nomination for Congress, today protested the election and asked for a recount.

That Congressman Tague walked through the streets with the ballots in his hand in order to relieve shortage at certain polling places.

That Tague workers carried ballots from places where surplus existed to precincts where there was a shortage.

COX BEATS ALLEN BY 137,254 VOTES

Complete official returns in the State primary election today revealed that Governor Channing H. Cox won the Republican nomination for re-election by a sweep of 210,936, to 73,682 received by Attorney-General J. Weston Allen.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge received almost the same vote as the Governor, the figures being 209,577, as against 68,627 for Joseph Walker.

In the Democratic contest for the gubernatorial nomination, ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald was given 57,222 votes, to 17,054 for Ely, 11,161 for Foss and 53,641 for Sullivan.

Colonel William A. Gaston got 68,359 votes, and the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, as compared to 81,484 for Herman L. Whipple, 19,156 for Walsh and 2,135 for Shea.

Lieutenant-Governor Alvan T. Fuller ran considerably behind the Governor, receiving 156,773 votes to 102,674 for former Speaker Joseph E. Warner. Jay Bernn won the Republican nomination for Attorney-General with 114,47 votes, 11,220 for Sullivan, 21,40 for Cavanagh,

PROTESTS CHARLESTOWN NOMINATONS

John J. Gillis, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination to the House of Representatives from the 4th Suffolk District, in Charlestown, today, in a letter to the State Ballot Law Commission protested against the names of James J. Mellen and John J. McCarthy of that district going on the ballots as the Democratic nominees. Mellen and McCarthy were the successful candidates for the place. Mr. Gillis holds that many of the voters could not vote "on account of there being an insufficient number of ballots in several precincts of Ward 4."

Tague sympathisers were permitted to use these ballots.

That during the late hours only known Tague voters were allowed in certain polling places and known Green voters were barred from voting.

That Arthur Harrington of the Internal Revenue Department, close friend of Tague, carried ballots from polling places to City Hall.

Senator Green asserts that in view of these "flagrant violations" of the laws the entire election in the tenth Congressional district, in so far as this contest is concerned, should be disregarded.

Secretary Cook took the appeal under advisement. He refused to comment on the situation to reporters, saying that he did not wish to make any statement until he had had opportunity to look into the case.

Peter F. Tague

The sensational disappearance of Senator Green stirred political circles. There is more than possibility that there may be a repetition of the Tague-Fitzgerald fight which resulted in the unseating of the ex-mayor.

It is believed that Martin Lomasney, backer of Green, engineered this attack against his bitterest political foe, with the possible exception of Mayor Curley.

Lomasney has admitted that he would take any means available to defeat Tague and it is almost a certainty that a part of the alleged evidence was dug up by workers employed by the Ward 5 boss.

"PASSING THE BUCK."

The officials in charge today passed the buck regarding the ballot shortage. Chairman Burlen of the Election Commission and Secretary of State Cook blaming each other.

It was agreed, however, that the shortage was due to the fact that Secretary Cook was not furnished with a supplementary list of voters, totalling 20,000 names.

Lomasney at the eleventh hour declared himself for Green. Tague fought a hard campaign.

The vote:

Tague	7,684
Green	6,438

Lomasney carried his own ward for Green, but his efforts were futile. Donovan received 2,424, Giblin 2,194, Kearney 2,485 and O'Neil 398 votes.

GALLIVAN A WINNER.

In the Twelfth Congressional District, Congressman James A. Gallivan won over John J. Carey by more than 6,000 votes. Carey carried but one ward in the district. The vote: Gallivan, 19,321; Carey, 12,876.

William T. A. Fitzgerald won a sweeping victory for renomination as Register of Deeds. This fight was one of the hottest of the campaign. Charles Winchester, Fitzgerald's nearest opponent, received a total of 24,243 votes, but was buried by Fitzgerald, who scored a high of 36,946.

In the contest for the Democratic nomination for Clerk of the Suffolk County Superior Court, John P. Manning won by a comfortable margin. The vote was close for a greater part of the night, but toward the close of the count Manning began piling up a lead. The vote:

Manning	35,386
McDonald	31,976
Sidlinger	2,320

Clerk of the Supreme Court John F. Cronin won a close victory in his fight for renomination. According to the latest figures he leads James H. Brennan by 1,866 votes. The latest returns, with Winthrop, Revere and Chelsea missing, give:

Cronin	35,000
Brennan	33,134

When told that Senator Green had charged him with carrying ballots around in his hand at the primary election in Charlestown yesterday, Congressman Tague declared the allegation a falsehood.

"It is a positive falsehood," he said, "and Green knows it. The only ballots transferred in Charlestown yesterday were taken in an orderly and lawful manner from the precincts where there was a surplus to the precincts where there was a shortage by duly authorized agents of the election commissioners.

CALLS STORY "SILLY."

"The story is utterly silly. The only ballot that I had in my hand was the one I cast."

Mayor Curley today sent the following communication to E. Mark Sullivan, newspaper friend:

"I have been informed that it is the purpose of certain candidates for public office to file a protest with a view to contesting the validity of yesterday's primary election, I as a consequence of the extension 2,787.

of time in which voting might take place.

"In view of the fact that I recommended immediate action by the election commissioners, subject to legal approval from you, before authorizing the extending of the hour of closing, and in view of the further fact that it was my desire that no one be deprived of the privilege; and the additional fact, if a large number were deprived, it might render necessary a special election entailing considerable expense I would respectfully suggest that you confer at once with the election commission and the Secretary of State so that the position of the city upon the entire matter may be clearly understood."

Congressman Peter F. Tague obtained his renomination from the Tenth District with 7,649 votes, according to official returns, which gave Thomas H. Green 6,438, Thomas F. Donovan was given 2,424, Thomas J. Giblin 2,194, John J. Kearney 2,468 and Dennis A. O'Neil 396.

In the Twelfth Congressional District the official returns gave Congressman James A. Gallivan 19,321 votes to 12,874 for State Senator John J. Carey. In the Sixteenth District Charles L. Clifford had 6,866 votes, Harold Winslow 5,728, John ity of yesterday's primary election, I Bryant 3,631 and Elmer L. Briggs as a consequence of the extension 2,787.

ELOPED, NOW FACES CHARGE OF BIGAMY

Putnam "Doll Show" man, who eloped with Margaret Kelleher. Now the police say he has two wives.

Chief of Police F. R. Delang of Putnam, Ct., left Boston today for home with Roger Langevin of Everett in charge. Langevin, accused of bigamy, figured in an elopement a few days ago with Miss Margaret Kelleher of Putnam.

Langevin had a "doll show" at a carnival in Putnam. His attention turned from his inanimate dolls to those who swarmed around his booth. He became acquainted with Miss Kelleher and wooed her. They "skipped" to Worcester, but were overtaken by the girl's mother and a police officer and taken back to Putnam. Then they were married at St. Mary's Church by Rev. Father Bedard.

The morning after the marriage Chief Delang and Patrolman Gveney, standing near Putnam railroad station, saw Langevin, suit case in hand, enter the station and buy a ticket for Boston. With him was his wife, clad only in a house dress. The chief was about to intervene when a 'phone call came from Everett.

It was the mother of Dalphine Darnell calling. She said Langevin had married her daughter in February, 1922. Before the chief could get back to the station, the train for Boston had left. He called the Boston police and Langevin was arrested by Inspector Norton as he left the train in Boston.

Still later police say, they learned he was married to Mildred L. Foss of Canterbury, N. H., in 1920, but had been divorced.

STATE TRIAL OF PONZI HELD UP

Postponement of the trial of Charles Ponzi on State indictments, charging him with swindling, was granted by a ruling of Chief Justice Sisk of the State Supreme Court today.

The court ruled that the State must furnish Ponzi with detailed specifications of the charges against him.

Ponzi did not appear, being represented by Harvey & Campbell. William Flaherty, Assistant Attorney-General, declared that the ruling will make it impossible to bring Ponzi to trial next Monday as scheduled, because it will take some time to detail the specifications. Ponzi will be tried before Attorney-General Allen's tenure of office expires, however.

peals. Dollars are the successful soldiers, and orators of this age.

Old-fashioned Republicanism takes a happy breath. Maine is safe and sound. No roaring progressivism there. It does not mean much. Maine has no prohibition problem—that was all settled comfortably long ago, and this is a good apple year.

Extinct Volcano Kipling, having made rumbling remarks about the United States entering the war too late, France, England and the United States discussing the question. What is, "Too late?" This column offers to the gentleman another question, which they might ask and answer.

If the United States had been attacked by half a dozen nations, and had said "My back is to the wall, I am fighting for life, come and help me," how soon do you think England, France or anybody else in Europe would have sent three million men and ten thousand million dollars across the ocean to help us?

Louis Louchur of France, successful bettor, bet that the German mark would go to one cent, time, which is a fifth of a cent, in 1922. It went to ONE-TWENTIETH of a cent. He is betting now that before the end of the year there will be a democratic revolution in Germany. He bets that the Democrats will win the coming Congressional elections in the United States. He says that will result in "decisions in which we—in France—will felicitate ourselves."

He is an intelligent Frenchman, for the Republicans are certainly going to have heavy losses this Fall. But his hope that more Democratic Congressmen would mean more League of Nations nonsense is false hope. The people of this country decided that question at the last national election.

Votes Cast After 4 P. M. Are Held to Be Legal

Boston's vote, cast after the polls were scheduled to have closed, owing to a shortage of ballots, was held to be legal by Allen. They stated that there is a precedent. It was known as the "Sunset Case," and voters were allowed to cast their votes after the polls were scheduled to have been closed. "You cannot take away a man's right to vote simply because there are not enough ballots. It is up to the election officers to see that the voters are supplied with the ballots," it was ruled.

DE VALERA AT DUBLIN PEACE CONFERENCE

By International News Service.

Dublin, Sept. 13.—Eamon De Valera has been in Dublin conferring with General Richard Mulcahy, commander of the Free State army, on peace terms for the Irish Republicans, it was learned today.

The general opinion is that a peace treaty between Free States is improbable at this time.

The peace terms of the Free State government, as outlined by General Mulcahy, were understood to be as follows:

Rebels to lay down their arms and pledge themselves to respect the constitution.

There shall be no revision of the Anglo-Irish treaty.

General Mulcahy, in addressing the Dail Eireann, said:

"The Irish army must be the army of the people. The government must control all armaments so that there can be no illegal concentration of arms."

A civilian was killed and several others were wounded in fighting in this city throughout the night.

Part of the English troops that have been maintained in Ulster are being withdrawn. This is regarded here as evidence of faith on the part of the London government that the Irish Free State administration is capable of maintaining order and has no intention of hostilities against Ulster.

Republican Troops Storm Dublin Prison

Dublin, Sept. 13.—Fighting broke out here today between Republican and Free State troops when the former attempted to storm Mountjoy Prison, where Roderic O'Connor, former commander in chief of the rebel army, and other irregular leaders are confined.

Free State troops were rushed to the defence of the prison and the battle lasted fo half an hour.

MITCHELL WINS BY 198 VOTES

John L. Mitchell of Hull, candidate for the Legislature, defeated George Dodge of Hull, Cohasset and Hingham by 198 votes. Dodge is a machine candidate. It is the first time in many years that an outsider has broken the ranks of the machine in this district. In Cohasset, Mitchell polled 508 votes and his opponent 168. In Hingham, Mitchell polled 421 and Dodge 295. In Hull, Mitchell

ARREST FOUR MEN IN BRIDGE BLOW-UP

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 13.—Police department detectives today arrested four men, all said to be strikers from the Pennsylvania Railroad local shops, on a charge of dynamiting the Fourteenth street bridge on August 31. The four men were Daniel Definey, Harry G. Seidel, Robert J. Pratt and Daniel Gregory, all of this city and residents of the vicinity of the railroad shops.

The detectives said that all the men except Pratt have signed written confessions of guilt, and that Pratt aided in their investigations.

PRAYER FOR MRS. HARDING AT KEITH'S

A noon service of prayer for the recovery of Mrs. Harding, wife of President Harding, was held in Keith's Theatre today.

The service was held under the auspices of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches.

Rev. Edward Dan Gaylord, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Dorchester, opened the gathering. Rev. Frank Kingman, pastor of the People's Temple, Berkeley street, made the prayer, and the Rev. W. A. Bentley of the Diocesan House, Joy street, read portions of scripture.

WAR FLAMES IN BALKANS BLAZE ALL AROUND

By International News Service

While the disarmament commission of the League of Nations was accepting the plan proposed by Lord Robert Cecil of England, for limitation of armies, the cables announced that Jugo-Slavia was beginning to mobilize in fear of another Balkan war.

Bulgaria is preparing to go to war against Greece, as a result of the Greek defeat by the Turks, to restore the old Bulgarian boundary in the southeastern corner of the Balkans.

FIGHTING IN THRACE.

Fighting was reported on the Bulgarian frontier in Thrace, with Bulgarian, Greek and Turkish troops involved. Russia was reported to be giving the Bulgarians support on condition that the Bulgars go to war against Rumania. This report was logical, in view of the fact that the allies had detached the province of Bessarabia from Russia and given it to Rumania.

Turkish newspapers are still clamoring for a Turkish military movement against the allies unless Thrace, Adrianople and Anatolia are restored to the Turks.

TO TEAR UP TREATY.

The Greek legation in London charges Bulgaria with plans to "tear up" the treaty of Neuilly, alleging that the Bulgars have been influenced by the Turkish victory over the Greeks and the Turks refusal to accept the treaty of Sevres.

Reports that King Constantine of Greece will abdicate continue in circulation. It was reported from Lucerne, Switzerland, that Constantine would return to that city—the place where he spent his exile when he was forced from Greece by the allies in 1917.

WILL SUPPORT GREECE.

Rumania and Jugo-Slavia have informed Greece they will support her in the event of a Turkish attack in Thrace.

The anti-Christian movement in Turkey is reported to be increasing. Christian refugees arriving at Smyrna report that the Turks are looting towns and murdering Greek and Armenian Christians. The Turks have made similar charges against the Greek troops.

IZZY HIT BY R. I. BARTENDER

Julius and August on Page street. The bartender, George Nachrieb, is a German. "Izzy" at once leaned confidentially over the bar and began to converse in the tongue of the Vaterland. He whispered into Nachrieb's ear that a mutual friend had sent him there saying he could get a drink. Izzy got it at once.

Izzy poured the liquor into his famous shirt flask and announced himself. At that moment Joseph Sawyer, a barber from a next-door shop, stepped out of a rear room in the saloon. Izzy thought him another bartender. He took no chances, and before the frightened barber knew what was happening Izzy had grabbed him and thrown him into a closet. Izzy locked the closet door and turned in time to meet the bartender.

IZZY LOSES TEMPER.

He and George adjourned to the street where hot words were exchanged. Suddenly Izzy lost his temper and poked Nachrieb in the jaw. The bartender then let loose with a couple of haymakers. One connected with Izzy's nose and the blood spurted out in a stream.

A huge crowd had surrounded the battling pair and when Nachrieb landed his right the crowd closed in and cheered. Izzy glanced back at the crowd and saw nearly a score of barbers with razors in their hands. They did not bring the razors to join in the fray, but had left their customers in their chairs while they rushed out to watch the fight. A look at them and their razors—plus the bleeding proboscis—took all the fight out of Izzy. With a parting word in which he told Nachrieb to "look out for the United States Commissioner Izzy departed for running water and a clean towel.

nominations to the House of Representatives. Others were elected to the State Republican and Democratic committees.

The women showed themselves good campaigners.

Catherine D. Bell, Representative candidate, was victorious in the Second Suffolk, East Boston District. Jessie F. Emery of The Warren, St. James and Warren streets, Roxbury, won the Republican nomination in the 15th Suffolk District.

Viola M. Alward, No. 15 Townsend street, Roxbury, also won a Republican nomination in the Fifteenth Suffolk District. Susan W. Fitzgerald, No. 7 Greenough avenue, West Roxbury, carried off the Democratic nomination for Representative in the Twenty-third Suffolk District.

Mrs. Anna C. M. Tillinghast of Bellevue avenue, Cambridge, won a notable victory for membership on the State Republican Committee.

Arrayed against her were Ex-Representative Philip R. Ammidon, a former chairman of the Cambridge Republican City Committee; Clarence H. Adams and John O. Lang. Mrs. Tillinghast polled 2,607 votes, Ammidon 2,011, Adams 1,091 and Lang 174.

Mrs. Tillinghast had a corps of workers at the polls. She also had machines. She said today she was out to win. For years she was an ardent suffrage worker, and since then has organized women committees all over the State. She is an ordained minister of the clergy.

Other successful women candidates for nomination are M. Sylvia Donaldson, Brockton, Republican, 10th Plymouth, and Aurelia C. Gillespie, No. 51 Parkton road, Boston, Republican, 14th Suffolk.

CHARGE MAN ABDUCTED GIRL OF 13

Henry Goodwin, fifty-eight-year-old widower of Orono, Me., was arraigned today in Lynn Court, charged with the abduction of thirteen-year-old Edna Merrill of Orono.

With the arest of Goodwin there came to light one of the strangest cases of its kind on record.

LURED GIRLS.

It was last Fall, when Goodwin was janitor of the University of Maine, that he first met Edna. It is said that he received calls from her and other young girls, the nature of which brought about Goodwin's leaving the university.

Some weeks ago the old man and the little girl disappeared simultaneously. Nothing was known of their whereabouts until last week, when they were traced to Lynn. The Lynn police received a request from the authorities of Orono to arrest Goodwin. Edna had apparently written to friends and told them her address.

It developed that Goodwin and the girl had come to Lynn, the man representing that Edna was his daughter. They took a room in a lodging house.

It was not long before other rooms began to notice that the relationship between the two was not as it purported to be. Returning to his room one night, Goodwin found the door barred and bolted against him.

WROTE GOOD-BYE NOTE.

He wrote a note of farewell to the effect that Edna would be sorry she had thus treated one who had been devoted to her. Then he pushed under the door and left.

It was then that neighbors complained to the police. They communicated with the authorities at Orono, and a warrant was issued for the arrest of Goodwin. He was traced to Bangor. Sheriff Fernandes took him in custody there and brought him back to Lynn.

RENOMINATE McLEAN IN CONNECTICUT

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 13.—United States Senator George P. McLean was renominated as the Republican candidate for Senator by the State convention of the party here today. The name was presented to the convention by former Governor Marcus H. Holcomb and the renomination was by acclamation.

Charles A. Templeton of Waterbury, the present Lieutenant-Governor, was nominated for Governor, also by acclamation, as was Professor Hiram Bingham of Yale University for Lieutenant-Governor.

This was preliminary to his formal statement for publication, which follows:

"By the nomination of Mr. Pelletier by the Democrats the fight for honest administration and respect for law which was won in the courts has shifted to the political field and the good name of Massachusetts is at stake. It is the paramount issue in Suffolk county and is of vital concern to all the people of the Commonwealth.

"The contest," the Attorney-General continued, "is between the decent, law-abiding citizens and the underworld and those who are allied with it in the war against society. The disgrace of yesterday must not be repeated.

"The electorate of Suffolk county has not yet spoken. Thomas C. O'Brien, who has shown himself the upstanding, honest and fearless for the forces of corruption, holds the office of district attorney safe from those who look at it with hungry eyes. The law-abiding citizens must combine to wipe out the recurring menace of Pelletierism and prevent the disgrace of electing a man who can never hold the office for which he is a candidate unless the law requiring that district attorneys shall be members of the bar is rejected by the people of the State on referendum."

'SWAMP BABY'S' MOTHER TO START NEW LIFE AMONG STRANGERS

'GOD HELP ME,' SHE CRIES

Unwed Mother Will Put Little June in Friendly Hands

New York, Sept. 13.—Leah Silver, the Lynn, Mass., girl, who has been on trial in Brooklyn for abandoning her baby in a Coney Island swamp last July, was free today.

She was acquitted by a jury in county Judge Taylor's court room after a two-days' trial. She left the courtroom weeping and in a broken physical condition. Twice, while telling her story on the witness stand, she fainted. She was the only witness for the defence.

In a faint, trembling voice she told the story of little Ruth's birth: of the despair and wretchedness and temptations of the unmarried mother, of maddening physical pain, and at last of her desperate resolve to turn the baby over to a taxicab driver, who promised to put Ruth where someone was sure to find her.

Leah Silver.

Drawn out by her attorney, Julian V. Carabba, Leah said that she did not leave the taxicab, hired on the night of July 9. The taxi driver went alone with the baby to the spot near the creek where Ruth was abandoned. Of this she was sure.

She had come from her home in Lynn, Mass., where she had worked, because the persons she had boarded her baby with refused to keep Ruth any longer. The child was then six teen months old. She tried vainly to find a home for the baby, in this city.

SWOONS IN COURT.

She was expecting to become a mother again at any hour. She was frantic, hardly knew what she was doing.

When the girl left the stand she swayed. An attendant sprang and helped her to her chair. In a moment she swooned and was carried out of the room.

She buried her face in them and cried:

"Oh, God! If I am saved from this, help me never to get in such trouble again."

After a fit of hysterical weeping she said:

"I was arrested on July 15. I have been in jail for two months. Not since that first day have I seen my baby Ruth. But my new baby, I named her June. Oh, she is so pretty and so precious. I am thankful to know she has a good home and another mother, who will bring her up as her own."

OFFERS OF HELP.

Here the girl produced a letter just received from the foster mother of June. It was a kindly, generous letter, full of courage and offers of help. Leah caressed it lovingly, and said:

"She does not want her name used in the papers, for she wants to bring up the baby without a trace of this disgrace. She lives in Paterson, and that is where I am going if I am allowed to go out into the free world again.

"I want to look over the offers for adoption they tell me have been made for my Ruth. I understand the Coney Island police and the Kings County hospital have many of them, and I don't wonder. Ruth is so pretty and bright.

"I would keep her myself, but how can I bring her up? I'd so much rather she would never know about her mother or her father. She would have so much better chance.

CAN'T FACE MOTHER.

"I want to go home to my mother and my aunt, but how can I? The neighborhood is full of this thing. It has broken my poor mother's heart and she has been sick in bed for two months.

"No, I must get a job where I am not known and begin all over again. Later, when things are forgotten, maybe I can go home."

NAUGHTY PLAYS TO HAVE TRIAL BY N. Y. JURY

New York, Sept. 12.—Naughty plays produced on Broadway—whether they be French farces resplendent with lingerie, German psychological studies, or Russian tales of Muzhiks—will face the American plan of "trial by jury" under a system adopted by the city at a meeting in the office of John F. Gilchrist, commissioner of licenses.

Managers, actors, authors and reformers are pledged to abide by the decision of the jury before which the play will be brought to trial upon the complaint of any theatregoer.

JURY PANEL OF 300.

A panel of 300, made up of actors, lawyers, churchmen, writers, teachers, city officials, welfare workers, and others, has been listed, from which, in the event of a play offending someone's taste, a jury of twelve will be drawn by Commissioner Gilchrist.

Should the decision of the jury be adverse, the play must either be withdrawn or revised. A vote of nine to three is required before a play is condemned.

PLAN WORKED OUT.

Representatives of five groups have been working on the plan. These groups are: Augustus Thomas, executive chairman of the Producing Managers' Association; Eric Schuler, of the Authors' League; Joseph P. Bickerson, representing the Exhibitors' Interests; Cranston Benton, vice-president of the Drama League; Frank Gilmore, of the Actors' Equity Association; Mrs. Herbert J. Glover of the Episcopal Church Service; and John G. Sumner of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice.

GIRL'S MOTHER FLOGGED BY FOUR WOMEN

Fort Worth, Texas, Sept. 13.—Mrs. I. C. Tatum, aged 44, was reported in a serious condition today as the result of a flogging administered last night by four women, one of them masked, who described themselves as a committee of the "Ladies of the Invisible Eye."

Mrs. Tatum, who received 100 lashes, it was said, was accused by the four of "ruining her daughter."

The women, who announced themselves as members of a secret society, enticed Mrs. Tatum into an automobile by promising to take her to her daughter. The car was then driven six miles from her home at Dallas Pike, where her assailants, she said, applied straps with balls fastened to the ends.

IN SERIOUS CONDITION.

According to a Mrs. Floyd, aunt of the victim, Mrs. Tatum's body was a mass of bruises. Mrs. Floyd said that Mrs. Tatum believed she could recognize two of her abductors. County officers were requested not to disturb Mrs. Tatum until morning, because of her condition.

No threats had been received by Mrs. Tatum, Mrs. Floyd said, but she told the officers that the women who whipped Mrs. Tatum said they were from Dallas. They accused Mrs. Tatum of "ruining her daughter," and told her that if "Tarrant County can't do anything, Dallas can."

SENDS NOTE TO PAPER.

The first news of the flogging came through a telephone call to a local newspaper asking that reporters be sent to another paper. There a note lay on the desk, reading "A committee of four women of the Ladies of the Invisible Eye administered one hundred lashes to a Mrs. Tatum who lives at stop six on the Dallas Pike on the night of September 12."

Later a young man appeared at the office and told of alleged mistreatment by Mrs. Tatum of her daughter. He gave the reporters directions as to how to reach Mrs. Tatum's home and disappeared.

THAT MOANIN' HELICON

You might think I was only blowin' myself to a good time, but not so, friends. The Helicon is a serious instrument and the Vega boys are a serious band. The Helicon, if you really are worried about it, was so-named by the neighbors of its inventor.

By THE FLAPPER
CARYL FRINK.

"Perfectly balanced and especially desirable when on the march."

That's how the Vega Company's catalogue screams the virtues of their double B flat Helicon Bass. It's about as portable on the march as a grand piano. I played it in the company's band yesterday and it proved to be a burden just standing still.

After the first few notes of "The Swallow's Return" my jaws felt as though I'd been lunching on old pennies.

I hafta admit that I didn't contribute an awful lot of harmony to the band. All I had to do was to come in with an occasional "umpa, umpa." After a while the waits began to get boresome. So I took an inventory of my pockets to see if I couldn't find something to eat.

FINDS PICKLED LIME.

All I could find was a pickled lime. I don't know how I happened to have it because pickled limes are not one of the things I like nothing else of but. They're neither sensible enough for a food nor silly enough for a vice.

But there wasn't anything else on hand, so I started to munch it, just to be doing something.

The tenor trombone, playing next to me, quit playing and glared at me.

"Stop it!" he said.

"Stop what?" I asked, sweetly.

But he had to take an important high note and couldn't answer.

BIG BASS YELLS.

Just then the BB flat Monster Bass had a couple of rests right in a row and used them to yell at me.

"Don't DO that!" he screamed.

"Don't do what?" I asked, innocently.

But the monster bass had to blow an important low note and could only fight me with his eyes.

"The Swallow's Return" was beginning to sound kinda wet when the E and F Mellophone leaned over and said confidentially:

"Quit eating that — that lemon."

Even as he said it his face curled up like an accordion and he couldn't open his mouth for his solo part.

"I'll eat it if I like it and I like it," I snapped.

SHE'S FIRED.

But in a minute I changed my mind. The time came for me to get in my "umpa umpa" and I couldn't utter a sound.

I almost blew my head off, but no result but a weak gurgle.

"Aha," cried the leader of the band. "Now I know what's a matter with my crack outfit. A lemon in a band is like an orange at a Gaelic picnic. Out you go!"

"I don't care," I said. "I rather play a Zither anyhow. And besides," I added, as I put on my hat, "it's a lime."

HOOTCH SELLERS GET $50 FINES

Today was liquor day in the Newton and Waltham courts.

In Newton court Francesco Foglianf of Nonantum street, Newton, paid a $50 fine for illegal sale, and Mario Rufo of Chandler street was given a suspended sentence of three months in House of Correction for keeping a liquor nuisance.

In Waltham court Antonio Deraklaukos of No. 9 Music Hall avenue, Waltham, paid a $50 fine for keeping a liquor nuisance, and James Kalas of the same address, who runs a grocery store on Charles street, Waltham, paid $50 for keeping a liquor nuisance.

The case of James Kokinis, former owner of Kalas' store, but now a clerk therein, charged with maintaining a liquor nuisance, was continued, as were those of Joseph and Mary Lacava of Charles street, charged with selling liquor. Charles B. Coyne of No. 17 Powell street, Dorchester, paid $50 for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

HOOTCH PARTY NEARLY PUTS OVER WEDDING

Charles George Ross and Miss Florence Margaret Clifford first met at a gay party in a downtown hotel. Several hours later Joseph E. Ferreira, justice of the peace, was aroused from peaceful slumber at his home, No. 1,672 Washington street.

Charles and Margaret, who is nineteen, and resides at No. 103 Charles street, desired to be married, they told Ferreira. When the lights were turned on Ferreira, according to the police, received a surprise. Both, it is alleged, were "under the influence."

Pretending to fill out the required marriage license, the justice of the peace learned something about Florence and notified a Mrs. Emmons, with whom the Clifford girl lives. Mrs. Emmons appeared on the scene with Patrolman Gately and Healy, and there were explanations.

The Clifford girl was sent to Haymarket Relief Hospital, and Ross to the East Dedham street police station. Miss Clifford was later discharged from the hospital. She refused to make a charge against Ross and he was released.

LAWYER ULMER DISBARRED IN U. S. COURTS

W. Edwin Ulmer, Boston attorney exonerated by a special legislative committee of the charge of conspiring with Judge Edward F. Pierce of the Supreme Court, was disbarred in Federal District Court today.

W. Edwin Ulmer.

The disbarment was ordered by Federal Judge George W. Morris on findings that Ulmer violated court ethics by his activities in connection with the bankruptcy cases of the Henry Wood Sons Company and the Wahan Rose Conservatories.

In the court's opinion Ulmer was guilty of spreading scandalous matter upon court records, that he gave false testimony, maliciously attempted to interfere with a receivers' sale, filed an affidavit of prejudice against a judge and during five years of practice before the court willfully and deliberately attempted to impede and subvert the administration of justice.

Last April, in the Superior Court, Ulmer was found guilty on seven counts of an indictment charging him with having made false returns to the commissioner of corporations of the financial condition of the Henry Wood Sons Company.

GIRL FLEES FROM "CAVE" MAN OFFICER

Honolulu, Sept. 13. — "Rough stuff" might be fine strategy in the army but its "bum stuff," according to Miss Helen Briedert, who is speeding to her home at Santa Monica, California, from Honolulu, to escape a "cave man" army officer who wooed her, declaring he would emulate Gen. Grant and win her "along those lines if it took all Summer."

NOTED WRITER SAYS "LOVE RULES WORLD"

New York, Sept. 13.—Despite all that critics may say to the contrary, the real foundation of American life is love and romance. This is on the authority of a person who has written more books on love and romance than probably any other in the world, no less a personage than Laura Jean Libbey. "Love will find a way," declares the noted author, "and if it were not for the millions of happy American marriages brought about purely for love, the country would be in a sorry state."

In the Democratic contest for the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor Doherty received 52,040, O'Leary 53,685 and Cummings 37,256.

Former District Attorney Fellet ler won the Democratic nomination for district attorney by more than 20,000 votes. His nearest opponent was District Attorney O'Brien, who received 16,553 votes on the Democratic ticket. O'Brien won a sweeping victory on the Republican ticket, with a vote of 21,960.

Secretary of State Frederick W. Cook ran unopposed.

Governor Cox's victory is the more remarkable because it was the first test of his ability to stand the gaff of a hard political fight. Since 1908, when Governor Cox, at the age of twenty-nine, broke into politics as a member of the old Boston City Council, he has gone along patiently through a succession of promotions to the Chief Executive of the State—but always patiently, always without a hard fight.

TRIBUTE TO COX.

He went to the House for ten years, was Speaker four. He then went into the office of Lieutenant-Governor, finally Governor, without opposition. His political enemies had characterized him as a human zero in the fight line.

The first indication of his readiness to put on the gloves with all comers, including so formidable a foe as Attorney-General Allen, was when he telephoned from New Bedford to the State House, fifteen minutes after Allen had concluded his Faneuil Hall attack. "Hire the same hall and I answer him tomorrow."

RETURN FAVOR GASTON.

Cox thus made the first fighting speech of the campaign and paved the way for the glorious victory that came to him yesterday.

The peculiar gentleman who have been vying with some acorn, "O, there an interest in this election," got ler first reverse with the first rums.

Senator Arth L. Quinn of Swampscottthas the third member of this year upper branch to go down to def, yielding his Republican nomination to Representative Charles H. Fotingham of Lynn.

Others defeated included:

Representas Charles G. Hull, Ipswich, Reptican, 23d Essex.

Representes Harry E. Pinkham, Lynn, Jubican, 14th Essex.

Representan Cornelius F. Corbett, Worcester Democrat, 15th Worcester.

Representative John M. Wood, Somerville, Republican, 24th Middlesex.

Cape Cod, first in many things, was first to come through with hard, cold facts. Orleans sent up the proud word that seventy of its ladies and gentlemen had marched to the polls to perform their civic duty. an increase of 16 per cent. over its vote of two years ago, when Governor Cox had no Allen to cause him uneasiness and when Richard H. Long of Framingham and John Jackson Walsh were then fighting for the hardly-worth-while Democratic nomination for Governor.

Essex followed with 110 votes, as compared with its sixty-one of two years ago. In the good, old days of the lamented Augustus Peabody Gardner it was then unusual if more than 100 to risk their crops to uncertain Fall weather, even for their beloved "Captain."

And so it went. From the Berkshires to the Cape, the deluge of ballots razed the strength and patience of the election officers some of whom will at least poke their heads above the surface about noon today.

ESSEX FAITHFUL.

Orleans, brought, too, its first reverse to Attorney General Allen. Cox 39, Allen 23 was the verdict. But it brought no smile to the face of Sherman L. Whipple, Colonel Gason received five of the seven Democratic votes cast for United States Senator, John Jackson Walsh receiving the remaining pair. Mr. Whipple and Professor Sharp will probably pass their Summer vacations elsewhere than Orleans. Nary a vote for either.

Essex remained faithful to the "regulars," sending in a three-to-one score for Cox and Fuller. And there came a ray of disappointment for Mr. Lodge. The first town to report from his Essex County stronghold cast twenty-two large votes against him. He ran no better than Governor Cox and he but held his own with Aivan Tufts Fuller, who incurred Lodge's bitter enmity in Congress a few years ago when he told the world he regarded the senior Senator as "a fossil."

ONE LONE DEMOCRAT.

Lodge and Fuller have been doing a bit of formal handshaking this year but it is no secret that the best the one hopes of the hope is that he will never hold office again.

Florida came in shortly, all the way from the New York line. From the returns it would seem that Florida's lone Democrat walked into the booth, cast his vote for Eugene Noble Foss, passed up all the other "Democrats," folded his ballot, dropped it in the box and walked out.

In Florida, the Republicans found one of the most disheartening and unruly spots in the Commonwealth. Mr. Allen carried it over Governor Cox, 9 to 6. Joe Warner led Fuller, 8 to 6, and the senior Senator found himself obliged to run into a 7-to-7 tie with Joseph Walker. The Republican missionaries will start for Florida in the morning.

G. O. P. CHIEFS WIN.

Considering that several thousand men and women were candidates for office, that half a million people were directly interested and that such few disorders were reported, the police feel the old Bay State hasn't quite gone to the bow-wows after all.

Bulletin—Arthur W. Jones, Nantucket's solo member of the Legislature, won a smashing victory. He was nominated without opposition.

Charles H. Morrill of Haverhill, who for eight years was the only member of the Legislature, asks that the fact be noted he will be a candidate again in November.

The two Republican Leaders of the Legislature won renomination without opposition. President Frank G. Allen of the Senate was the only Republican to seek the party nomination from his Senatorial district.

Speaker Benjamin Loring Young was renominated in Concord, not even George Albree showing a hand against him.

DEMOCRATS CAN REJOICE.

Fifty G. O. P. candidates for the House breezed into their nominations without the slightest hint of competition, a fact, however, that reveals the eagerness and bitterness with which the elections were generally contested. There are 240 members of the House. The districts have been so wickedly gerrymandered by the Republicans that at least 100 of them usually got by every election without a serious fight.

In the State Senate battles, the same eagerness to hold office was again evident. Only four of the forty districts escaped Republican fights, one of those being the place where President Allen holds sway.

The Democrats may rejoice that they sent more candidates to the polls than ever before and the indications are that enough sticker candidates were written into the ordinary strong Republican sections to assure the majority party of a healthy battle in November.

WOMEN'S FATES IN DOUBT.

The fate of the women candidates was undecided as this was written. Eleven of the twenty-three were, of course, nominated without opposition, but they were conceded Republican nominations in overwhelming Democratic districts, or were given the Democratic nominations in such places as Winthrop, where a Democrat has scarcely been elected since Lee surrendered. The indications are plentiful that most of the ladies lost where the nominations amount to something.

WOMEN SHY AT QUERIES.

The first ten towns from widely scattered sections of the State told a mouthful favorable to the Governor: Allen, 177; Cox, 598. The Governor there obtained a lead which was never wrested from him, not even threatened.

Reports came from far and wide that the women voters did not take too kindly to the primary idea. Unlike the big election two years ago and unlike the elections in the non-partisan cities, they were asked which party they desired to enroll in. Some of them would have rather told their age. They marched out, declining to confide that secret to anyone. But the size of the primary vote can be accepted in part as ample evidence of woman's increasing interest in politics.

Mt. Washington, the little town nestled in the Berkshire Hills, as far from Boston as any town in Massachusetts could be, rebuked the aggressive activity of Attorney General, just as its sister town of Greenwich had done. The Mt. Washington vote was: Allen, 6; Cox, 12.

Meanwhile, Provincetown, situated on the tip end of the Cape, was doing a job that Mr. Cox received with glee, Mr. Allen probably with sorrow. Provincetown recorded: Allen, 42; Cox, 338.

By that time a few of the Boston precincts were coming in and they carried the same story of Governor Cox's notable victory. The prophet who had said the silent vote would be polled for Mr. Allen was ready to abdicate his throne.

ALLEN LED ONLY 6 TOWNS

One hundred and thirty-five men and women of Berlin walked into the polling place but it seems they must still feel that Wilson started the war. Not one of them voted the Democratic ticket. During the war, they were thinking of changing the name. After these returns, the Democrats will probably stand for anything that can be done to Berlin. Walpole was even more exclusively Republican with its 372 votes.

Attorney General Allen will probably carry not more than a score of towns in the State. None of the cities has yet shown friendly disposition toward him. Out of the first 100 towns, he carried but six over Governor Cox: Shutesbury, 14-5; Buckland, 83-63; New Braintree, 84-11; Sandisfield, 1-0; Clarksburg, 54-43 and Williamstown, 72-43.

Florida's lone Democrat was offset by Sandisfield's lone Republican.

A few of the towns were as close as close could be. Dover, for example, gave Allen 45 to the Governor's 46. But, by and large, the Governor romped away from the man who gave him the first hard battle of his public career.

Governor Cox lives and votes in Precinct 9 of Ward 7, out towards the Fenway. What the people think of him in his home district may be gauged from the vote there. The precinct gave him 158 to 54 for Mr. Allen.

District Attorney S. Howard Donnell gave the first indications of his strength when he carried Newburyport over Jay R. Benton, the Republican machine candidate for attorney general, by a vote of 653 to 578. Harold Wilson was third with 340 votes. Cox overwhelmed Allen in this city, 1497 to 372. Lodge and Fuller swamped Walker and Warner.

INVALID JOYCE WINS

Too ill to campaign for himself, but his wonderful personality going out to the hearts of his constituents, in appeals from an invalid's chair Thomas M. Joyce, erstwhile enemy of Mayor Curley, now his friend, won a sweeping victory in the fight for the Democratic nomination to the House of Representatives.

He won with a plurality of over 200 in the ten precincts of Ward 12 easily besting the Tammany Democratic Club's proteges.

WILLIAMS IS LEADING KANE BY 4,000

Harold P. Williams, assistant district attorney, is leading by 4,000 in the race for Republican nomination for district attorney of the Plymouth-Norfolk district.

Only a few precincts remain to be heard from.

BARUCH SAYS ALLIES CAN PAY U. S. DEBT

Washington, Sept. 13 (By International News Service).—A vigorous protest against cancellation of the $11,000,000,000 foreign debt to the United States was made by Bernard Baruch, the New York capitalist, in a letter to Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, which was read in the Senate today.

Baruch declared all the allied nations were able to pay their debts to the United States and asserted "it will be difficult to convince the American people they cannot."

MONTREAL PRINTERS TO STRIKE FRIDAY

Montreal, Sept. 13.—A strike of the 2,000 union printers employed on all of the daily newspapers of Montreal will go into effect on Friday next, the publishers were notified today by the International Typographical Union, whose five year contract expires at that time. The union men, it was understood, asked for wage increases of $6 a week and a reduction of working hours from forty-eight to forty-four, which the publishers denied.

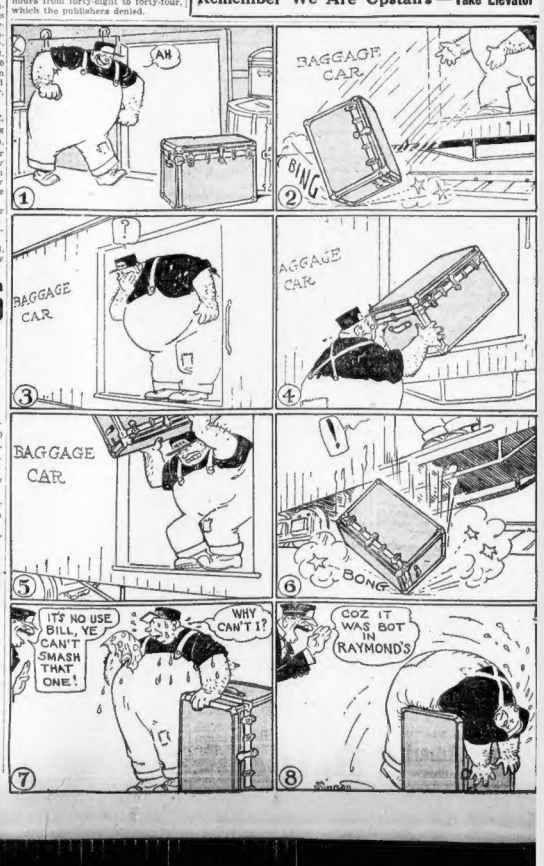
Remember We Are Upstairs—Take Elevator



From 7 to 11 tonight—

How much do you get out of your hours of recreation?

Exercise, a chance to read, theatre, movies—whatever you like to do best—must be crowded into four short hours each day.

You work hard for those hours. How much do you really get out of them? How much energy does the day's job leave you?

Few of us realize that we start out each day with a certain fixed amount of energy—and no more. From the time we get up in the morning constant drains are being put upon it. Yet, instead of saving this energy for the things that count, many people waste part of it every day in a score of useless ways.

One of the greatest wastes is standing or walking on hard heels.

Even if you do wear rubber heels—

Most men today know the tiring effect of pounding about on leather heels. They wear rubber to relieve this drain on their strength.

This idea was started twenty-five years ago. It was started by a man who worked constantly on his feet all day and had little energy left when work was over—with a backache each night in the bargain.

One day instead of standing on the hard floor he stood on a rubber mat.

The effect astonished him. He felt better that night than he had in weeks. Next day he cut two pieces of rubber from the mat and fastened them to the heels of his shoes.

And that was the beginning of the idea that resulted in O'Sullivan's Heels.

Look at your heels!

Like all good things, O'Sullivan's Heels have been widely imitated. Are yours O'Sullivan's?

If they're not—ask your repairman for O'Sullivan's next time! O'Sullivan's usually cost you no more than ordinary rubber heels. But notice the difference at the end of each day! See how much freer you are from tiredness and strain.

You'll understand then why millions of men and women today don't just "wear rubber heels"—they insist on O'Sullivan's!

The city's jarring shocks would ruin them

Balances delicate enough to weigh the ink on a comma—galvanometers whose needles betray the presence of even the slightest electric current—seismographs that show small tremors in the earth from shocks 3,000 miles away—

These instruments will not perform their functions in cities where heavy traffic keeps every building, street, and sidewalk in a constant state of vibration. That is why they had to build the U. S. Bureau of Standards in the country.

Is it any wonder that thousands of men and women are trying to protect the human body, the most sensitive instrument of all, against constant shocks and vibrations?

O'Sullivan's Heels

Absorb the shocks that tire you out

LIST OF DEBTS FILED IN COURT BY FITZPATRICK

A composition offer of 100 per cent. on all unsecured debts not entitled to priority was made today by the brokerage firm of James H. Fitzpatrick & Co., which was petitioned into bankruptcy on September 5.

According to the offer the unsecured debts would be taken care of by payment of each account in full by note, payable November 1, 1923, with each debt computed as of September 5, 1922.

Fitzpatrick, whose failure revealed the successful culmination of the romance of his sister, Miss Annie Frances Fitzpatrick, to Crawford Dearth, an Ashland farmer, despite a prohibitory clause in her father's will, filed a bankruptcy schedule today.

He stated he lives at No. 463 Commonwealth avenue, and gave his liabilities as $407,122, with assets unverified. However, he listed assets to the amount of $144,900.

All liabilities were said to be open accounts, and included those of C. H. Johnson, Burlington street, Woburn, $10,853; J. F. Mellon, Boston, $13,000; Harry C. Mayo, Hansatt street, Roslindale, $26,184; A. W. Murray, No. 89 Leon street, Roxbury, $25,722; Thomas E. O'Connor, Norfolk street, Dorchester, $17,396; E. S. Paine, Lakeport, N. H., $14,867; George Richards, No. 419 Broadway, Chelsea, $13,973; John J. Spillman, No. 14 Gordon street, Allston, $11,246, and E. E. Whittemore, No. 1570 Boylston street, Boston, $14,282.

The assets include real estate valued at $22,500; bills, promissory notes and securities, $10,000; debts due on open accounts, $25,000; stocks, negotiable bonds, etc., $15,600; unliquidated claims, $25,000, and property in reversion and remainder, $50,000.

NAME WOMAN TO LEAGUE COUNCIL

Geneva, Italy, Sept. 13.—Women leaders are elated over the appointment of Mrs. Coombe Tennant to a portfolio in the League of Nations Councils at Geneva. International recognition of "women's rights" was assured by her appointment. She was appointed by the British government to hold a "watching brief" in women's interests as a member of the League assembly. Her appointment will lead to the naming of other women from other countries to future parleys.

The party included Sister Thomas Bresnahan of Revere, Mass., and Sister Dolores Cruise, East Weymouth, Mass. The priests leaving are the Rev. Fathers John Toomey, New Bedford, Mass.; Arthur Paulhus, Fall River, Mass., and Frederick R. Fitzgerald, Holyoke, Mass.

HARVARD MAN FREED ON MOTOR CHARGE

William H. Clapp, Harvard instructor, arrested after a chase across the Harvard bridge by Mounted Officer Frank Sullivan, was found not guilty of drunkenness and operating under the influence of liquor by Judge Hayden in the Roxbury district court today.

Clapp, in his own defence, stated that he did not see the officer signal him and was unaware of his presence until stopped in Central square, Cambridge, after a mile chase. He said he was taking a friend home. The friend was found guilty of drunkenness last week following the arrest of the pair.

SIXTEEN HURT IN TROLLEY COLLISION

Mountain Carmel, Pa., Sept. 13.—Sixteen persons were seriously injured and are in the Shamokin State Hospital, and a score of others received minor body lacerations in a collision of two trolley cars of the Shamokin & Mount Carmel Transportation Company line today. A number of those in the wreck may die.

"DOLLAR PRINCESS" MAY RULE GREECE

PRINCESS CHRISTOPHER

Princess Christopher formerly Mrs. Florence B. Leeds, may be ruler of Greece if plans in the war-ridden district go through. Mrs. Leeds has given profusely to the war funds and the abdication of the King and his sons will bring the American girl to the throne.

MRS. LEEDS MAY BECOME QUEEN OF GREECE

Paris, Sept. 13.—The abdication of King Constantine of Greece is being delayed while unofficial negotiations are opened with Washington to permit his fleeing to the United States.

According to information from a high source all the influence of Princess Christopher of Greece, the former Mrs. William B. Leeds, is being used to grease the ways for the King's departure, since it is realized that if he does not abdicate the throne itself may be overthrown and a republic proclaimed. In that case, of course, the "Dollar Princess" would no longer be connected with a "reigning house."

It is understood that the Princess has offered her royal relative a refuge on her son's estate in New York on the condition that he remain in retirement for the rest of his life.

In some quarters it is even rumored that Constantine may abdicate for his sons as well as for himself, in which case the throne would go to Prince George of Greece, who would certainly refuse, leaving Prince Christopher the only candidate. In the event of his acceptance the Princess Christopher would become the first American Queen.

The estimated losses of the former Mrs. Leeds owing to the Greek rout in Asia Minor have been put at millions of dollars. Her generous contributions to the Imperialistic campaign of King Constantine have been one of the chief financial features of the Greek war against the Turks.

U. S. FOOD SHIP OFF TO SMYRNA

Constantinople, Sept. 13.—The United States destroyer Edsall has left for Smyrna, bearing a deckload of supplies, including flour and condensed milk, furnished by the Near East Relief, for the starving refugees stranded there.

The destroyer was despatched following receipt of urgent appeals from the American Relief workers in Smyrna, who declared that lack of foodstuffs threatened to cause riots. Many already had died from starvation.

JEW QUESTION BRINGS CHALLENGE TO DUEL

Budapest, Sept. 13 (By the Associated Press).—The moot question of how many Jews shall be allowed to matriculate in Hungarian universities has brought about a challenge for a duel between two prominent Hungarian educators. Following the exchange of a number of uncomplimentary letters, the rector of Budapest University, Dr. Larsony, professor of surgery, has challenged the rector of Szegedin, Dr. Meny, part professor of Brazil Jurisprudence, to a duel with swords.

PERSHING CELEBRATES HIS 62nd BIRTHDAY

Washington, Sept. 13.—General John J. Pershing celebrated his sixty-second birthday today—quietly. Four years ago today, when he was fifty-eight, it was not spent so quietly. The American army had just pushed the Germans out of the St. Mihiel salient, recovering a great stretch of territory and capturing thousands of Germans—all without serious losses to the Americans.

"SHOOT DYNAMITERS" COKE STRIKE ORDER

Uniontown, Pa., Sept. 13.—"Shoot dynamiters on sight," was the order issued today by Sheriff Shaw to every peace officer on duty in the Fayette County coke field.

Since the strike on April 1, the homes of a number of non-union miners have been destroyed or damaged by blasts. Several explosions have been reported during the past two weeks.

FOUR R. I. MILLS JOIN IN WAGE INCREASES

Pawtucket, Sept. 13.—Four more mills, employing about 5,000 men and women, today announced wage increases of from 10 to 20 per cent.

The Sayles Finishing Plant, located in Saylesville, leads with an increase of 20 per cent. The U. S. Finishing Company granted an increase of 17 per cent., while the Ninigret Company and the Dexter Yarn declared increases of from 10 to 15 per cent. These last three companies are all located in this city.

The Lonsdale Company, employing 2,500, which was the first mill to announce an increase, thereby breaking the deadlock, reports about 2,000 employes back. There remain 500 employes yet to be taken care of by the Lonsdale Company, but officials announce they will be re-employed at the first opportunity. The Lonsdale Company has three mills, one in Ashton, one in Berkley, and a third in Lonsdale.

The outcome of the meeting held between representatives of the mills and labor leaders was announced as most amicable.

East Hampton, Sept. 13.—The West Boylston Cotton Textile mills have announced an increase in wages in all departments, restoring the schedule in effect prior to February 13 of this year. About 2,000 hands are affected.

Textile Workers Condemn Daugherty

Fall River, Sept. 13.—Two resolutions, one advocating trade with Russia on the part of the United States and the other condemning Attorney-General Daugherty of the United States for securing injunctions against the striking railroad shopmen, were the features of this morning's session of the annual international convention of the United Textile Workers of America.

Both resolutions were favored and adopted by the delegates. A third resolution now under discussion concerns the question of taking ways and means to render all possible assistance to those who continue on strike during next Winter.

General President Thomas F. McMahon announced that the New Hampshire strikers had voted not to return to work, notwithstanding the offers made by the manufacturers of Manchester and other manufacturing centres. President McMahon said: "There will be nothing doing in the textile centres of New Hampshire until the forty-eight-hour week has been granted. When this is done, we will consider the question of returning to work."

Westbrook, Me., Sept. 13.—The management of the Dana warp mill today announced the restoration next Monday of the wages in effect last February. About 600 are employed.

Lives to Be 96 as He Minds His Business, Doesn't Worry

New York, Sept. 13.—United States is the only country in the world where genuine liberty of thought and education obtain, according to Dr. James Rosedale Waitel Ward, ninety-six, who was naturalized in Federal court here.

"I entertain this idea in spite of the eighteenth amendment," declared Dr. Ward. He admitted that he was an anti-prohibitionist and that he smoked sixty cigarettes a day.

Dr. Ward attributes his long life to minding his own business and not worrying. He was born in Jerusalem in 1826.

"I visited America first in 1842," he said. "I met Abraham Lincoln several times. Giteau, Garfield's assassin, I once employed as an agent for a lecture tour."

TWO MORE PLOTS TO OVERTHROW SOVIETS

London, Sept. 16.—A plot to overthrow the Moscow Soviet government has been discovered and many prominent Russians have been arrested, according to a Central News despatch from Helsingfors today. It is said that disorders have broken out. Details of the alleged anti-Soviet conspiracy were not given.

"BILL" DYER WINS WORCESTER FIGHT

Worcester, Sept. 13.—William H. Dyer won over Thomas J. Gannon for the Democratic nomination in the Fourth Congressional district, and returns indicate M. Fred O'Connell won the Democratic nomination over Nixon Campbell of Fitchburg and Andrew J. Leach of Brookfield in the Third Congressional district.

PRAISES HEARST ON VANDERBILT INTERVIEW

New York, Sept. 13.—Mayor Hylan today made public at City Hall a letter he had sent to William Randolph Hearst praising the publisher for his attitude on international conditions, the allied debt, the soldier bonus, labor and the trend of political thought.

"Your trenchant answers again reveal your broad and sound grasp of public and national questions," the Mayor wrote. "I have said that you are the outstanding Democrat in public life, and I am only confirmed in this opinion by your interview."

The letter says:

Dear Mr. Hearst: I read with great interest your answers to the questions propounded by Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., in the interview published last Sunday. It was a masterly presentation of your views on the subjects. The questions which you answered are uppermost in the minds of the people of the nation.

Your clear and decisive views on international conditions, allied debt, soldier bonus, labor, trend of political thought, etc., are hailing back to the viewpoints of Abraham Lincoln on vital public affairs. The people have known by their votes during the past several months that they are following the Lincoln idea in economics and government and that they are looking for a leader.

Your trenchant answers again reveal your broad and sound grasp on public and national questions. I have said that you are the outstanding Democrat in public life and I am only confirmed in this opinion by your interview. The public and the nation will no doubt be benefited by the clear thoughts which you expressed on these great questions, which should be placed before every person in the State and nation.

Extending my heartiest greetings.

Here Is Law That 'Bars' Pelletier From Office

Joseph C. Pelletier, Democratic nominee for district attorney, faces a unique situation. A technicality bars him from office if elected. Under a new law no district attorney may serve who is not a member of the bar. Pelletier has been disbarred.

He will urge a referendum to set aside this law.

The law reads:

"Section twelve of chapter twelve of the General Laws is hereby amended by inserting after the word "therein" the words: and a member of the bar of the Commonwealth, so as to read as follows:

"Section 12. There shall be a district attorney for each district, who shall be a resident therein and a member of the bar. He shall serve for four years beginning with the first Wednesday of January after his election and until his successor is qualified."

YANKEE MILLIONAIRE BIDS FOR ROYAL YACHT

London, Sept. 13 (By International News Service).—The royal yacht Alexandra may be conveying the members of an American millionaire family within the next few weeks instead of the royal family. It was learned today that an American millionaire was bidding for the yacht, which has been put up for sale.

REVISED BONUS BILL GOES BEFORE HOUSE

Washington, Sept. 13.—The soldier bonus bill, in the form agreed upon by Senate and House conferees, was laid before the House today by Chairman Fordney of the ways and means committee. The bill probably will be acted upon tomorrow.

DISARMAMENT PLAN APPROVED AT GENEVA

Geneva, Sept. 13 (By International News Service).—General disarmament was approved by the League of Nations assembly disarmament commission today.

The commission adopted the plan of Lord Robert Cecil of England that the Washington conference program for naval disbarment be extended and that limitation of land armaments be considered at the same time. This proposal was opposed in some circles in view of the possibility of another war in the Balkans.

The disarmament commission suggested that the Cecil program be ratified by the various nations represented in the League before the next assembly meeting in 1923.

Ireland's Chances to Join League of Nations Good

Geneva, Sept. 13 (By the Associated Press).—Ireland's chances for admission to the League of Nations now appear to be good. Her application is not on the agenda of the assembly, but the Steering Committee can put it there if it sees fit.

Michael MacWhite, the Irish Free State delegate to the league, has returned to Dublin to report on the situation here and learn conditions in Ireland.

All that is necessary for the admission of Ireland now, it is said, is that she give some sure indication that she is able to maintain order and disposed to ratify the Irish constitution.

PELLETIER WINS GREAT PERSONAL TRIUMPH IN PRIMARIES

FOUGHT A LONE BATTLE

Attains Vindication He Sought in Tidal Wave of Ballots

Swept back into the political limelight, Joseph C. Pelletier, ousted as District Attorney of Suffolk County by the State Supreme Court, was renominated to that office on the Democratic ticket with a plurality of more than 20,000 votes.

His nearest competitor, Thomas C. O'Brien, the present incumbent, trailed him by thousands of ballots. The race was not even close.

And back of the result of yesterday's balloting is the story of a fight against tremendous odds—a fight for personal vindication that was carried on without the aid of newspapers, without the aid of the "organization," without the aid of anything save one man's powerful personality and irresistible determination.

When the Supreme Court concluded its hearing of the removal proceedings against Pelletier, found guilty of misfeasance, malfeasance and nonfeasance in office and ordered his removal, it was supposed that the attorney's political career had ended. When he was disbarred from the practice of law in Massachusetts this supposition gained force. O'Brien was appointed to fill his place. Pelletier was "done;" he would never be heard from, politically, again. Thus reasoned the dopesters.

Early in the Summer the former district attorney began his campaign.

PELLETIER AND HIS WINNING SMILE

JOSEPH C. PELLETIER

He was fighting a lone fight, from the very start. The newspapers did not attack him. They simply ignored him—which is usually even more damaging. It did not seem possible that his candidacy could be taken seriously.

It did not seem possible, that is, to any except Pelletier and his tremendous circle of personal friends. But Pelletier was moved by determination, and his friends were moved by faith—and when these two qualities unite in unlimited quantities, interesting things sometimes happen.

Interesting things happened in this case. The other candidates for the office had from the first spent their time belaboring District Attorney O'Brien, considering him the chief obstacle to their success. But about the middle of the campaign, they changed their tactics, and made Pelletier the object of their attacks.

The newspapers, realising that Pelletier was a factor to be figured with, prepared to give greater space to his speeches. But Pelletier informed them quietly that he did not seek newspaper publicity. He was fighting his fight without the aid of publicity—something no other political candidate in the history of Boston ever tried to do voluntarily.

SURPRISED BY RESULT.

During the final days of the campaign Pelletier was unceasingly active. From rally to rally he went, always sounding the same note—the plea of a man who has been made the victim of circumstances for vindication. In each rally he discussed his record, pointed out that he had followed the right, as he had seen the right, and declared that he had given mercy freely when he occupied the district attorney's office.

Then came the primaries. The results surprised even Pelletier himself.

Over in Charlestown, where the voters started for the polls early in the day and kept coming until nightfall, he ran ahead of O'Brien at a ratio of three to one. The other candidates trailed out behind with infinitesimal totals.

Down in ward five, where Martin Lomasney, typical embodiment of the old-time political czar, had ordered his henchmen to vote for O'Brien, Pelletier ran a surprisingly close second. O'Brien led in this ward, but his lead was nothing to write home about.

In ward eight, the exclusive Back Bay, which was expected to frown darkly on Pelletier, the former district attorney ran ahead of the field, leading O'Brien by a comfortable margin in a manner that was even more surprising than his victory in Charlestown.

The voters of ward twelve are neighbors of Mayor James M. Curley. Just how the mayor stood on the district attorney race is not known, but interest was aroused in the action of his ward. When the smoke had cleared away, it was found that Pelletier had romped through with fully twice as many votes as O'Brien.

Even in Ward 25, O'Brien's home district of Brighton, Pelletier ran well. The finals in that ward showed that 620 citizens had expressed a preference for O'Brien, while 501 had voted for Pelletier.

The Pelletier victory was one of the most amazing personal triumphs ever recorded in Boston. When it is considered that no one in the city even now seems to know whether Pelletier will be allowed to take office if he is elected, the victory is more surprising than ever. Pelletier told his hearers that he could sit if elected; but all of his opponents declared he could not, and a good share, at least, of those who voted for him must have done so merely for the sake of expressing their confidence in him, rather than because they believed he would ever be district attorney again.

GIRLS

See and Hear

THE MOXIE BOY

Twelve Beautiful and Artistic Moxie Dancing Girls

Be sure to visit the Water Circus at Spy Pond, Arlington, all this week, as observers from the Moxie Intelligence Department will be there in their quest to find a beautiful and talented big and little sister for the famous Moxie Boy. If you should be the lucky one, your fame would be assured—so look your prettiest.

Remember this Water Circus is held under the auspices of the Middlesex Sportsman Association, Arlington Lodge, B. P. O. Elks, and is under the personal direction of Harry S. Orr, the King of Showmen.

Everybody:—You have a treat in store for you

The famous song, "MOXIE," will be sung by the Moxie Boy, accompanied by the twelve beautiful and talented Moxie Girls. This, remember, is especially staged by that King of Producers, Harry S. Orr.

So that you may all join in the Chorus of the famous Moxie song (and this means everybody from everywhere, so be sure to be there), we repeat the Chorus here, so that you may have it before you. We would ask you to continuously rehearse it at your house, at the office, at your business place, in the car, on the playground, on the golf course, in your auto, and especially on your way to the Water Circus, so that you may be well qualified to join in the public chorus when the Moxie Boy, accompanied by his twelve beautiful Moxie Girls, sings the Moxie song.

CHORUS

Moxie, oh Moxie, me for you—
I don't know what I could do without you.
As a drink you're a hummer, in winter or summer,
There's something so pleasant about you.
Oh, you stand the test, for you are the best;
I'll send all the rest down the line.
Let others keep trying, you're so satisfying,
There's nothing like Moxie for mine.

(Copyright, 1921, by the Moxie Company International copyright secured)

So that everybody may join in drinking a toast to the Moxie Boy, Moxie can be obtained, served ice cold, at the Moxie booth, presided over by specialists.

GIRL AND HER FATHER KILL TWO RELATIVES IN KNIFE BATTLE

FAMILY FEUD AT END

Petty Family Jealousies End In Tragedy for Two Boys in Wild Fight

Rockymount, Va., Sept. 13.—Helen Bridges, sixteen, covered with knife wounds, today told how she and her father, Lewis Bridges, fought with knives and guns with his brother, Lacy, and brother-in-law, Posty Shively, and killed them both.

The fight took place Saturday. Bridges and his daughter sought shelter in the home of a farmer, where their wounds were dressed. Then they made their way to Rockymount, where they told their story.

FOUGHT TO DEATH.

The girl said the bodies would be found beside the road, about fifteen miles from here. The sheriff and two deputies found them there.

Bridges said two men attacked him while he and his daughter were travelling along the road. He said they attempted to stab him to death. When his daughter went to his assistance they attacked her too. There was a wound four inches long across Helen Bridges' left breast. Other wounds were on her right side and right arm. There is also a deep gash about three inches long on her neck.

"Lacy Bridges hit my father on the head with a rock," the girl said, "then they pulled knives out of their pockets and began cutting him. I went to his assistance and they cut me. They fought all over the road and in the bushes. I did all I could to help my father."

"When my father got them both down they did not get up. We lay on the ground several hours, exhausted and bleeding. Then we went to a farmer's house and had our wounds dressed.

Bridges and his daughter have not been arrested. The police say Bridges has been at outs with his relatives over family jealousies.

Scientists to Hunt 'Missing Link' in Malay Land

San Francisco, Sept. 13.—Captain Edward A. Salisbury, scientist and explorer, today was enroute for the Malay Peninsula, where he will search for what has been termed in science "The Missing Link." His daughter, several scientists and explorers, and two motion picture men accompany him.

The party will go to Singapore, where Captain Salisbury's yacht, Wisdom II, is anchored.

Captain Salisbury said rumors had come across the Pacific Ocean from time to time about a tribe of wild men in the jungles of the Malay Archipelago, who had short, vestigial tails, receding foreheads and protruding brow ridges. The captain said he did not accept these stories as the truth, but he was in search of whatever was to be found.

Mrs. Wilson Popular Hostess at Her Newport Villa, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

WHEN the former Marion Mason of Boston married Richard T. Wilson of Newlork, some years ago, the smart set here by noseans lost track of her, but still follows with great her comings and goings. Just at present she has as her guests at her Newport villa Mr. and Mrs. James Vail Converse and the latter's sister Miss Gloria Morgan of New York. Young Converse is a nephew of the Frederick S. Converse of Boston, his marriage to Miss Thelma Morgan take place within the past year.

Due to the fact that the Wilsons leased their Newport estate for the major portion of the Summer, the former Marion Mason found herself unable to go in for any extensive entaining. However, as soon as the temporary cupants of her place departed last week, Mrs. Wilson decided to have a "bang up" party than Whereupon she gave a dinner for twenty, followed by an informal dance to which were bidden a large number of additional guests. Invitations were issued by telegraph, and the affair was quite impromptu, a fact which didn't prevent everyone from having a good time.

SPEAKING of Newport, that jollygog couple, Mr. and Mrs. Fiddle Koenig (ie Hodges) have gone to the gay Rhode Islandering place for a brief jaunt and are regled at the Muenchinger King.

Also in Newport is Miss Honorkon who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Peyton Ir. Reneslaer at La Farge cottage.

"HOLY MIKE" is the uniquame of the horse which Miss Olivia Ames exhibited in the Myopia Horse Show on Satur.

The lovely daughter of the Oliver Ames's of Commonwealth avenue, North aEstnd Pride's Crossing is certainly one of the w hundred's most popular members. Besides g of most attractive appearance, she is of gum height, rather slim, and has soft brown h and deep blue eyes, she is a corking good eswoman, a charming hostess and is noted everers for her kindness in helping others.

At the Myopia show Miss Ames was for the most part with Mrs. Bayard Tuckean, Jr., the former Phyllis Sears, who was akamong the notable exhibitors there.

MISS OLIVIA AMES

Miss Olivia Ames, who is one of Boston's enthusiastic sportswomen, was among those exhibiting at the Myopia Horse show last week. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Ames.

THE famous Ice Glen parade, which is always one of the outstanding features of the season at Stockbridge, with its flaring torches and picturesque costumes, will be held tomorrow evening.

THAT very youthful bridal couple, the Robert Thompson Pells (Alice Harding) sailed yesterday for their honeymoon abroad on board the Canard liner Aquitania. Mr. and Mrs. Pell, whose marriage last week at St. John's Church brought a deluge of New York and Washington notables to the small Beverly Farms church, will spend several weeks traveling in Europe. They plan to make their home in New York.

Another recently-wedded pair who sailed as fellow-passengers of the Pells were Dr. and Mrs. Stanton Garfield who were married on Saturday at Rye Beach, N. H. Dr. Garfield, who is the son of Dr. Harry Garfield, the president of Williams College, will bring his bride to Boston to live. The latter was formerly Miss Lucy S. Hodges, daughter of Mrs. George Hodges of Baltimore.

AMONG the Bostonans registered at the Aspinwall Hotel in Lenox, are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw, Mr. Arthur T. Cabot and Mrs. Henry H. Sprague.

I UNDERSTAND that Mrs. Winthrop Murray Crane, who is a member of the Clinton Club here, has taken Mrs. James Imbride's house at No. 9 East Seventy-fourth street, for the Winter.

Mrs. Crane, who was formerly Miss Josephine Boardman, has a country place in Dalton known as "Sugar Hill," where she frequently entertains many of her Boston friends and connections.

REGINALD FOSTER, JR. went over to New York for the wedding of Miss Marion Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Taylor, and Langhorne Gibson, son of the well-known artist, Charles Dana Gibson, and Mrs. Gibson.

The ceremony took place at St. Mark's Church, Mt. Kisco, a large reception following at the country place of the bride's parents.

MRS. HARDING SHOWS STEADY GAIN

Washington, Sept. 13.—Indications at the White House today were that Mrs. Harding was continuing to show the same favorable progress toward recovery which brought expressions of confidence from attending physicians that the crisis of her illness had been passed. In view of the improvement, the question of an operation at this time was no longer under consideration today.

Dr. Charles Mayo, who was called in consultation on the surgical aspects of the case, has departed for home, as has also Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, who, however, will return Friday. This left in attendance with Brigadier-General C. E. Sawyer, the White House physician, Dr. George T. Harding of Columbus, the President's brother, and Dr. Joel T. Boone, medical officer on the Mayflower, the presidential yacht.

The White House issued the following statement at 9:15 o'clock:

"Mrs. Harding's condition at 8 o'clock: Temperature, 98.8; pulse, 88; respiration, 28.

"She had a quiet, comfortable night, sleeping longer and with less interruption. Elimination increases. Tenderness and swelling slowly subsiding. General appearance indicate as rapid improvement as can be expected.—C. E. Sawyer, M. D."

CONGRESS HOPES TO ADJOURN BY SEPT. 23

Washington, Sept. 13.—Adjournment of Congress by the end of September, so Senators and Congressmen may have five weeks in which to prepare their constituents for the November elections, was forecast today by administration leaders. While Congressional optimists hoped to be homeward bound by September 23, a threatened renewal of the tariff fight in the Senate indicated the adjournment would not be reached until the following week-end. A Presidential veto, although not expected by its Republican advocates, would also delay the Congressional "getaway" until an effort was made to pass the bill over the President's rejection.

"U. S. WON WAR!" SAYS BAKER TO Ccritics

Cleveland, O., Sept. 13.—Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, in a formal statement today said he had no interest in "distributions of individual praise or blame concerning the conduct of the World War," as the only answer he would make to the biography accorded him in the Encyclopedia Britannica. The biography detailed numerous criticisms of him.

"The American army won the war," Mr. Baker said. "The American people, by their sacrifices and ideals, sustained the army and ennobled the cause. The glory of it is a common possession and is of great national tradition."

Pay Up That Income Tax by Friday--Or Pay Penalty

It's time to pay the third instalment on your Federal income tax. If you don't get your payment in by Friday, Sept. 15, you'll have to pay 6 per cent. more, and for every month you neglect it $1 more will be added.

Payments must be made at the office of the collector of internal revenue, Little Building, or at any of the branch offices, before the close of the business day Friday.

The collector of internal revenue says that a large number of persons let their instalment run over a few days from carelessness and so incur the penalty. Women, he says, are less negligent about their penalties than men!

CITY IS SHAKEN BY RAIL YARD BLAST

San Bernardino, Cal., Sept. 13.—The crew of a Santa Fe Railway freight train early today reported they had seen the flash of the terrific explosion which shook this city and surrounding territory in a radius of eight miles late last night.

The blast occurred beneath an empty stock car, standing on a siding 250 yards from the passing freight train. Deputy United States marshals intimated that thirty sticks of dynamite had been exploded with a cap and fuse, as a sixty-five-pound railroad rail was broken and twisted.

A. J. Hillian, former police officer, reported to the police that an automobile without license numbers or lights passed him bearing three masked men.

WIFE DEFENDS BIGAMIST'S 'MISTAKE'

Prostrated because a self-confessed bigamist denies the paternity of her unborn child, Gladys May O'Neil Bowles lies in her sister's home in Norwood, dazed and broken in spirit.

When Lancelot Bowles, Brighton man, who is serving six months at Deer Island for bigamy, denied that he is the father of her child, the final ironical stroke was added to the girl's perverted romance that involves two wives, a husband, two children and an unborn babe.

While Mrs. Beatrice Casey Bowles cares for her two children in her South Boston home, waiting for the release of her husband, the "second wife" waits for the arrival of her baby, and feverishly invents plans by which she can keep and support it.

WANTS TO KEEP BABY.

"If only I can keep my little baby. My little innocent baby could comfort me and make me forgive the man who has hurt me so," she moans over and over.

A sweet-faced little mother in her home in East Pepperell told a Boston American reporter the story of the year of happy courtship, and the brief marriage that ended so disastrously.

"That devil in human form built up his life of lies so cleverly and safely that we were all deceived," she said. "He took my little girl around for a year before she married him and made us all think he was a good, upright man. He came to our house and visited all of Glady's relatives.

"The first time he ever came he called me mother and kissed me and told me he loved my little girl. We all trusted him and took him into our family. Surely no man with a conscience could have accepted our trust and hospitality knowing all the time that he intended to break all of our hearts.

WIFE NO. 1 LOYAL.

Mrs. Bowles, wife No. 1, who lives at No. 39 Sheffield road, Roslindale, married in 1915 and has two children. She remains loyal to her bigamous husband and declares that she will stick by him forever.

MAYOR IS AROUSED BY FREIGHT EMBARGO

Mayor Curley has written an open letter to President Frederic S. Snyder of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, calling President Snyder's attention to the declaration by trunk line railroads of an embargo against East-bound freight, and asking if he, as Mayor, can be of any service in counter measures which the Chamber may adopt.

The trunk line railroads, the Mayor points out, will not move freight East from their connecting lines, with the exception of food fuel and certain perishable commodities.

Ironized Yeast Gives the Stomach Natural Digestive Power!

There's one organ in the human body that "kicks back" when it gets weak, and that's the stomach. No stomach on earth can operate without vitamines-and-iron. The same thing is true about the nerves. There is hardly anything that can happen to the nervous system that is not at once reflected to the stomach. Weak nerves! weak stomach! Nature has only one answer: more vitamines! ironized! But remember! Ironized Yeast is not a mere mixture of yeast and iron, but is yeast ironized, which is a substance all by itself. This is why Ironized Yeast produces almost immediate results in cases of loss of appetite, aversion to food, belching, gas on the stomach, fermentation, "lump-of-lead" feeling after eating, dyspepsia, indigestion. There is only one Ironized Yeast in the world. It contains yeast - vitamines - with - organic - iron, the very natural food-power which every strong stomach and every strong nervous system possesses. The answer is, ironize! vitamin-ize! Ironized Yeast, is sold at all drug stores at $1.00 a package. Each package contains 60 tablets, each tablet is sealed. They never lose their power. Mf'd by Ironized Yeast Co., Atlanta, Ga. Take Ironized Yeast, and you'll enjoy eating, and digest thoroughly everything you eat. That's It!!

Broken Hearted

GLADYS M. O. BOWLES

WIFE ASKED FOR LOVE 'REBATE'

Rochester, N. H., Sept. 13.—Mrs. Gertrude J. Young of Hampton, taking the stand in Superior Court at the second day's session of the trial of her action for $10,000 damages against Mrs. Annie E. Nason, proprietor of a store at Exeter, whom she charges with alienating her husband's affections, claimed that before her husband met Mrs. Nason he was an ideal helpmate and frequently washed the dishes and helped her with the household tasks.

She admitted writing a letter to Mrs. Nason in which she asked for a "rebate," demanding that Mrs. Nason give her money for the trouble she caused her. She believed this was the only way the trouble could be settled, she said. She sent the letter to her cousin in Boston, to be mailed from that city.

At 3 o'clock in the morning on August 18, 1920, while watching outside her home awaiting her husband's return, she saw Mrs. Nason drive her car up to the house and Young get out. In 1919, she brought suit against Mrs. Nason for alienating her husband's affections. She admitted that on numerous occasions when her husband remained away over night that he did not know whether he was with another woman or not.

Elroy Shaw, selectman in the town of Hampton and connected with the electric railway company for ten years, testified that he had seen Mrs. Nason and Mr. Young riding together in an automobile in 1919 several times.

BABY "JIM" SHEA WHISTLING PRODIGY

Washington, Sept. 13.—John V. Shea thought a canary bird had flown into the house. He turned to look for it and nearly lost ten years of life when he discovered that it was his 22-months-old grandson, "Jim" Shea, who was doing the whistling.

This infant prodigy is believed to be the youngest in the world. He whistles better than most grown men.

He imitates every kind of bird he hears—and does it well. Not only does he whistle, He imitates animals just as well as birds. He performed his little bag of tricks for President Harding a short time ago to the great delight of the nation's chief.

CARDINAL RANUZZI TAKES PLANE FLIGHT

Rome, Sept. 13.—At the age of sixty-five, His Emminence, Cardinal Vittorio Ranuzzi, member of the College of Cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church, took his first ride in an airplane recently, when he flew for half an hour over the Vatican and Rome. The Cardinal was accompanied on the trip by another member of the Cardinal's College. In an Italian Army plane driven by an army pilot. They expressed themselves as delighted with the experience.

R. R. PEACE NEAR WHEN JANITOR BUTTS IN

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Hearing on the government's application for a permanent injunction against striking railway shopmen continued before Judge James H. Wilkerson, while the shopcrafts' policy committee of ninety assembled again with prospects apparently favoring a vote today on proposals for ending the strike on some roads on the basis of separate agreements.

Although B. M. Jewell, chief strike leader, and his associates, were guarded in their statements and declined to comment on prospects of settlement, Mr. Jewell said said the union chiefs "hoped to get, some where," when their meeting yesterday was "unfortunately interrupted."

JANITOR BUTTS IN.

The interruption was made by a janitor who, single-handed, broke up the meeting of shopcraft leaders at a critical stage of the proceedings. With mop and broom in hand, the janitor told the railroad men they would have to "clear out" so he could "clean up for some women," who had rented the hall where the shopcraft chieftains were assembled.

Taking up the injunction proceedings, government attorneys resumed presentation of their mass of evidence supporting charges of sabotage and violence in connection with the strike.

Judge Wilkerson suggested that opposing attorneys try to reach an agreement over the introduction of evidence to expedite the proceedings.

200 AFFIDAVITS.

Blackburn Esterline, assistant solicitor general, who yesterday read nearly 200 affidavits of assaults, said he would read into the record reports of outrages in every State unless an agreement was reached to shorten proceedings.

Arguments on the motion of Donald R. Richberg and Frank Mulholland, counsel for B. M. Jewell and John Scott, chief executive and secretary of the shopcrafts organization, for modification of the restraining order, was deferred by Judge Wilkerson pending the introduction of evidence.

Heaviest Freight on R. R. in 11 Months

Washington, Sept. 13.—Freight loadings on all railroads during the week ended September 2, reached a total of 931,598 cars, an increase of 40,740 cars over the preceding week and exceeding the total of any week during the last eleven months, according to a report today by the car service division of the American Railway Association. Compared with the corresponding week of last year, the total was an increase of 190,810 cars.

KOENIG TO COMMAND NEW GERMAN LINER

New York, Sept. 13.—Captain Paul Koenig, commander of the German U-boat Deutschland, which before the entrance of the United States into the war, made two voyages here, is not dead, as was reported. He is so much alive that he has been chosen to command the North German Lloyd liner Columbus, the first German-built vessel since the war.

The Columbus is the sister ship of the Homeric which was first named the Columbus. The Columbus will be put in commission in 1923.

TOWNSEND WIN A NEWBERRY VERDICT

Detroit, Sept. 13 (By the Associated Press).—On the basis of returns from nearly two-thirds of the State, Michigan Republicans have renominated Charles E. Townsend for the United States Senate.

Townsend was leading Herbert F. Baker, farmer-labor candidate, by more than 20,000.

Governor Alex J. Grossbeck had increased his lead to nearly two to one over Richard H. Fletcher in the race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

James B. Balch was leading in the Democratic contest by 4,400 to 4,000 for Alvah Cummins.

Senator Townsend's supporters accepted the verdict as an endorsement of Townsend's acts in the Senate, particularly his support of Senator Truman H. Newberry while the latter was under fire.

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 13.—Nomination of Thomas G. McLeod, former Lieutenant-Governor, over Cole L. Blease, for Governor of South Carolina in the Democratic primary appeared certain early today on the basis of returns tabulated by the State. McLeod's majority in a total count of 131,346 votes is more than 15,000.

JAPAN HAILS U. S. GIRL MOST BEAUTIFUL

San Francisco, Sept. 13.—"Miss Columbus" might be the most beautiful girl in America and Miss Trowbridge the most beautiful in Boston, but according to the Tokio, Japan, papers Miss Barbara Haines, daughter of Major General Hainer of the U. S. Army, is "The Most Beautiful Girl in America."

Miss Haines was a guest of Secretary of the Navy Denby's party which recently paid a visit to Tokio. The Japanese papers were enthusiastic in their praises of the American beauty. The party has arrived in San Francisco on the Navy Transport Henderson.

FIND BROOKLINE MAN DEAD IN HOTEL ROOM

Isaac Wolper, 48 years old, of No. 16 Crowinshield road, Brookline, was found dead in his room at the American House, where he had registered on Monday evening. The body was taken to the Northern Mortuary, where an autopsy will be performed today. The medical examiner said there were no signs of violence, and added he is inclined to believe death was due to natural causes.

TRACK TORN UP, TRAIN DERAILED

Washington, Sept. 13.—Malicious destruction of a section of track by means of high explosive caused the derailment of a passenger train on the International Railway near Elwood, N. Y., on August 17, resulted in the injury of twenty-one passengers, according to an official report by the Interstate Commerce Commission today.

ROXBURY GIRL TO WED O'CONNOR OFFICIAL

The engagement is announced of Miss Florence M. Hagerty of Roxbury to Mr. Thomas L. O'Connor, vice-president of the F. P. O'Connor Company of Boston.

R. I. MILL WORKERS CELEBRATE VICTORY

Providence, Sept. 13.—The Pawtuxet and Blackstone Valleys blazed with torch-lights and bonfires until early today, while thousands of men and women shouted and paraded in joy, in celebration of the great victory won by the textile strikers in Rhode Island's cotton mills.

Thirty-one mills have announced their surrender, offering a resumption of working conditions that existed prior to the strike. This means that the old wages will be restored, and that, in cases where an extension in working hours had been ordered, the 48 hour week will be resumed.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

(Now investigating conditions in the West.)

Canada is recovering as encouragingly as any country in the world.

A year ago the Canadian dollar was worth only eighty five cents in American money. Today it is worth one hundred cents.

* * *

Canada and Canada's business, agricultural, financial and other affairs hold more interest for those populating the American border States than for those who live farther away from the dominion. Some briefly stated facts about conditions and prospects in the Dominion should, however, interest every wide awake business man in the United States.

Canada was the best customer of the United States until the high rates of the emergency tariff cut down her purchases from $797,000,000 to $502,000,000 in the year ended June 30 last. Our balance of trade with Canada was reduced in the same period from $265,000,000 to $207,000,000. Britain is now our largest customer.

* * *

America is rapidly building branch plants in Canada. We have built 300. Great Britain has established only 200.

Canadian crops this year are excellent both in the eastern and the prairie provinces. Grant Hall, vice president of the Canadian Pacific railway, who has been on an inspection tour through western Canada says:

Between the great lakes and the Pacific coast the cereal, fruit and vegetable crop will be one of the best we have ever had. British Columbia is suffering from drought, but apparently it has not seriously shortened the crop.

On the prairies we have every reason to be hopeful. Along our main line south to the international border, and for 175 miles north the crop is better than for several years. Of course, in some districts it is short, but the heads are of good length and well filled.

* * *

The demand for agricultural implements is increasing.

The iron and steel industry is improving.

Unemployment in industrial centers has greatly decreased and agricultural workers plentiful.

Canada's pulp and paper industry is becoming very active. In one recent month of the Dominion's total exports to us fifty per cent. consisted of wood, pulp and paper.

In Toronto and at some other points all former building records are broken this year.

Canada's output of precious and semi-precious metals is adding greatly to the country's wealth. Although Canadians feel that their mineral resources have only been scratched, total value to date has been: Gold, $455,000,000; silver, $353,000,000; copper, $270,000,000; nickel, $200,000,000; zinc, $100,000,000; lead, $70,000,000, making altogether $1,270,000,000.

Mineral production thus adds materially to Canada's 300,000,000-bushel wheat crop.

The Canadian picture, however, has another side.

Canada's national debt has soared to $2,272,000,000, equal to $263 per head of population—a rather staggering total.

This debt is being steadily swollen by the annual deficits of Canada's nationally owned railways. This deficit last year, without figuring interest reached $72,000,000, a striking contrast with the very ably privately managed Canadian Pacific which has earned and paid its regular dividends all through and since the war. The truth is that Canada has greater railway mileage per capita than any other country and badly needs more population to catch up with her three trans-continental lines.

A former Milwaukee boy, one of the world's great railway geniuses —originally "Tom" now Lord Shaughnessy—has offered to run the national railways for the Canadian people. He is a strong advocate of an intelligent, aggressive, broad policy on the part of the government toward increased immigration to fill Canada's vast, fertile lands and thus help to make all the railways pay. Since 1850 has owned company has spent $60,000,000 in securing new settlers, whereas the government has spent only half that amount.

The favorite Canadian reply when you ask how things are going is "Not too bad."

Interpreted, this means that Canadians are full of hope and courage and confidence.

This attitude, to my mind, is thoroughly justified, for the Canadians are hardy, well doing, industrious, law abiding people.

Drive on Rails Tends to Unsettle List; Equipments and Tobacco Lead

BEARS DEPRESS LOW-PRICED CARRIERS

A steady drive at low-priced rails tended to unsettle the market on the New York Stock Exchange. The selling was of a speculative nature, but it served the purpose and caused frightened holders of carrier shares to relinquish their lines.

Firmness characterized the opening, but the upturn was of short duration. The pressure in the railroad group soon assumed huge proportions and the list began to weaken. The leading issues came into the last hour at practically the lowest level of the day.

Despite the frequent attacks, many issues managed to push forward to the highest marks of the year, and in a number of cases record tops were reached.

Equipments and tobacco shares monopolized attention. American Locomotive, with its dividend added, reached a record mark. Baldwin, Steel Springs, Baldwin and Pressed Steel Car each set fresh upper marks.

The apparent success of plans for the merger of a number of tobacco companies accounted for the strength in this division. Both Tobacco Products common and the A stock extended their movements to new highs. American Can also trailed along with a remarkable gain.

Activity developed in the shipping division with Marine preferred jumping well over 2 points. American International rose over a point.

The pending of cheap rails was laid at the door of operators who broke Chicago & Great Western at the last session. Erie common and first preferred, St. Paul and New Haven were the weak spots. Great Western issues held steady, which action was one of the strangest issues in the group.

In the bond market the railroad offerings were featured. Chicago & Great Western fours advanced to above 84, compared with a low of 45½ during the recent break.

Tops for the year were set by American Water Works, Pittsburgh Coal, American Woolen, Iron Products, National Biscuit, Hendee, Jones Brothers Tea, Air Reduction, Western Cereal, Pacific Gas and Electric and Columbia Gas.

Wall St. Gossip

PRINCE & WHITELEY—No reason to do other than buy the good stocks and ignore temporary fluctuations.

LIVINGSTON & CO.—Under cover of the ceaseless churning, the sudden advance of specialties and the great activity, the market fails to convince one of its reality.

HALLE & STIEGLITZ—We continue bullish on the Standard Oils, especially Standard Oil of California.

JOSEPHTHAL & CO.—Continue to advise purchases on all natural recessions brought about by profit-taking.

J. S. BACHE & CO.—A specialty market. Just the kind to invite short selling on the theory that pushing individual stocks is a sign of weakness. However, we view the slight reaction as a normal development.

PRIMA RADIO advanced to a new high record as the result of a heavy buying movement. The company has recently received large orders for radio machinery. It is expected that the company will shortly introduce a new radio attachment which will eliminate static and voice distortion.

PERE MARQUETTE is one of the low priced rails giving the best promise of earnings this year. Accruing to present indications it should show larger earnings per share of common than some of the others selling at even higher prices.

BURNS BROS., from a small partnership in 1881, has grown to a corporation with annual sales exceeding $40,000,000. With the coal strike settled the company is making ready to handle millions of tons.

FEDERAL SUGAR REFINING COMPANY announces that statistics show that in the first eight months of this year over 600,000 tons of refined sugar has been distributed to the domestic trade in excess of figures for the corresponding period last year.

ATLANTIC COAST LINE is making a snappy "comeback" in earnings. Already in the first seven months of the year it has shown net earnings which, if continued at the same rate for the remainder of the year, will mean a new record for per share earnings on the 583,586,000 common stock. The banner year in this respect was in 1917, when Atlantic Coast Line earned $15.80 per share.

THERE IS ABSOLUTELY no truth whatever in rumors of receivership, declares Benjamin Fairless, of Chicago Great Western. "We have just got through paying Sept. 1 interest on bonds—more to the until March 1. We are handling more business than ever before."

SPECULATION regarding mergers and money-cutting kept the speculative community interested in the oils. Producers & Refiners was the most active stock of this class, because of the thought that the company might be taken over by Standard of Indiana through Midwest Refining Company.

Boston Notes

HORNBLOWER & WEEKS—The market should be strong today and then run into more selling tomorrow than it experienced yesterday.

FIERCE ARROW'S sales and shipments last month were greater than any August in company's history, aggregating 200 per cent higher than same period 1921.

UNITED SHOE COMPANY has made considerable progress in the matter of assenting equities with manufacturers in the prosecuting leases on the new basis.

CALUMET & ARIZONA is outputting its ratio of metal at cost approximating 10 cents per pound before taxes and usual depletion charges. Current copper quotations of around 14 cents can thus easily cover dividend requirements on its 643,600 shares with any appreciable firming in red metal quotations bespeaking consideration of increased disbursements.

MOVIE MEN TO FIGHT CENSOR REFERENDUM

Urging the right of free speech and expression, Sidney Z. Cohn, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, in a speech bitterly flayed efforts to establish uncontrolled censorship of movies, and declared that strenuous efforts will be made by the exhibitors to combat the formation of a producing and distributing trust.

Cohn addressed his remarks to over a hundred theatre owners of Massachusetts and New Hampshire, at their annual convention held in the Arlington Hotel.

He declared that the big producers and distributors in conjunction with each other, I see it difficult for small independent producers to market their pictures. Efforts will be made by his organization to either compel the distributors to market the productions or establish a national distributing agency confronted by the theatre owners.

The Massachusetts delegates laid plans for combating censorship in the pending referendum, to be placed on the ballot. They offered their leaders and members' full duties for every civic movement free from politics or for the good of the public.

'Caught in Raid'

MRS. M. VAN RIPER STEVENS.

New York, Sept. 13.—When Dr. Ludlow R. Stevens, noted eye specialists, raided a house in a fashionable section of Montclair, N. J., early in the morning, he found his pretty wife with J. H. Passwater, according to an affidavit filed with his petition for divorce. Passwater is named as co-respondent.

EPISCOPALIANS MOVE TO DROP WORD 'OBEY'

Portland, Ore., Sept. 13.—The word "obey" has retreated a step in the Protestant Episcopal Church and if it fails to receive more progressive proponents of the feminist movement, the Episcopal issues of 1925 will have to go along into married life without it.

It suffered its first rout in the House of Bishops at the general convention and now it goes before the house of deputies. It found here, a stubborn make a last stand after the general convention three years hence.

The exact word had its defenders but it was overwhelmed.

"Anybody who has had experience, said Bishop James E. Winchester of Arkansas, "knows the this promise makes for soundarity of the family."

"Not between partners" returned Bishop Charles P. Anderson of Chicago.

"This country is the only one in the world where this old form of promise remains," said Bishop Darlington of Harrisburg.

"Needless phraseology."

The advocates of the word lost, 26 to 27.

Another debated section of the marriage ceremony was the phrase: With my worlds goods I thee endow." The bishops passed the matter on to a commission for study.

Haigis Beats Griswold

Greenfield, Mass., Sept. 13.—John W. Haigis of Montague defeated Senator Lyman W. Griswold for Senator in Franklin Hampshire district, 4,500 to 2,565.

"England Saved Her Soul; U. S. Saved England's Hide"

Washington, Sept. 11.—Rudyard Kipling's recent slur on the part played by the United States in the World War prompted this comment from Senator Ashurst in the Senate.

"A British poet said the other day that America had England's gold, but that England had saved her soul. There may be some dispute as to whether England saved her soul, but no one will deny that Uncle Sam saved England's hide."

TOO OLD TO SUPPORT WIFE, SAYS HUSBAND

Lawrence, Sept. 13.—Judge Jeremiah J. Mahoney of District Court sentenced William Morrissey to three months in jail for failure to support his wife. Morrissey claimed he was too old to support his wife. The wife said that Morrissey had been previously ordered by the court to turn over half of his weekly salary but that he had failed to do so. She said she had not been able to support herself due to the Lawrence strike.

MOTORSHIP SCORES RECORD REPAIR BILL

Washington, Sept. 13.—The ship is heard motorship William Penn is hooked to have made a record for commercial operation in the year ending August 7, 1922 according to a statement issued today, verified reports from her officers showing a total expenditure for repairs of all kinds in that period of "less than $100." The Penn, a vessel of 12,000 odd tons, covered 44,731 knots in the twelve month period.

HUB COAL MEN EXPECT NO PRICE BOOST

[illegible] the fact that New York coal prices are reported adding about a ton to the price of anthracite [illegible] of the mines until next April for the cost of the coal strike [illegible] such increase has been heard of as yet in Boston.

W. [illegible] Cove, vice-president of Weeks Trefoon Company, independent operators of No. 233 Broadway, said: "[illegible] state [illegible] to talk on the matter [illegible] one of our colleagues who [illegible] said down," and added that [illegible] of the company's collieries cost $30,000 to maintain during the strike.

At the office of the State Fuel Administrator in the State House, it was declared no word of any increase in the price of anthracite coal at the mines, destined for Massachusetts, had been noted.

The three leading independent coal operators of Boston, also interviewed, declared they had not heard of any [illegible].

[illegible] there is no coal, there can be [illegible] one of the two declared. One [illegible] man, however, pointed to the fact that since the overhead expense of the coal companies, mines and offices, had been going on during the strike, it was only natural that the cost would have to be borne in some way, even if it were spread over a period of five years in the price of coal.

PROCTOR WINS IN VERMONT PRIMARY

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 13—Partial returns, a total of the are from [illegible] of Proctor, revealed the Republican nomination for Governor at yesterday's Statewide primaries, defeating Lieutenant Governor Abram W. [illegible] by a majority of about 5,500 votes. With only thirteen small towns missing out of 247 cities and towns in the state the vote was: [illegible] Proctor 24,867. There were no other primary contests in their party.

The vote by counties follows: Rutland, Foote 726, Proctor 1,099; Caledonia, Foote 1,307; Proctor 2,337; Chittenden, Foote 2,844; Proctor 2,447. Rutland, Foote 1,041; Proctor 4,046. THE WORST MENACE TO PUBLIC SAFETY IN Boston Today is the Decrepit Harvard Bridge! "Walking the plank" in the old days was less hazardous than walking (or riding) the planks of the span. Nothing further is heard of a new bridge. Is Boston so poor that she cannot guard the safety of her citizenry? The circles show the uprooted planks and holes in the structure. It yields under auto wheels like a billowing flag.

SPEAKING OF FRUIT. Here's Newport's Peachiest Peach! At least that's what the society folk call Miss Blanche Strubelgh. She bids fair to dethrone the present Newport beauty. Apparently she believes a cooling cigarette is an aid to comeliness.

HURRY, HURRY, HURRY! You still have a chance to win. Today's lucky Sea Beauty is Miss Alice Coughlin of No. 125 F street, South Boston. Check will be mailed to her. Send entries to Sea Beauty Editor, Boston American

DIVORCE? CERTAINLY Not! That's Mrs. Marion Candler's reply to the gossips. She'll stand by her husband, now being sued for $100,000 by Mrs. Sarah Byfield. Mrs. Candler is heiress to the "Coca Cola" millions. Just back from the Orient.

LOSING YOUR Pep, Flappers? "Snap into it" with a little classic dance on these snappy September morns. That's the advice of Miss Blanche Aldred, pretty Boston dancer, who believes in living up to what she preaches. Don't your favorite bathing suit and gambol in the cool dew on the morning grass You'll be surprised! Here is the comely artist performing an interpretative Greek dance

CASTING SHADOWS AND BALLOTS! ATTORNEY General J. Weston Allen, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, after casting his vote with his wife (right), and Mrs Catherin McCrillis, at Newton, returned to his headquarters where he heard the reports of the election's progress The photo was taken just after the trio had cast their vote.

BOMBING THE ENEMY WITH PHOTOGRAPHS! This recently invented camera, now in use in New England, has revolutionized aerial photography. It is called an oblique camera and is used for taking pictures of coast lines and harbors. Artillery units and forts then level their guns on the photographed territory.

IT'S DIFFERENT WITH LITTLE GIRLS WHEN THE SCHOOL BELL RINGS. All dressed up in hair ribbons and curls and "bobs," these future voters are just as eager as they can be to learn everything that makes for future Governors and Presidents. Also they are happy in the thought of seeing teacher again. They are on their way to Prince School in the Back Bay.

WHAT'S THE GOOD OF anything, anyway? Francis Doherty, proud of a Summer harvest of handsome freckles, wonders why they ever built schools. He says he's out o' luck.

WAS EVER A MOTHER SO CRUEL — JUST ASK "Young America." Protest as they will, mother knows what's best and is unrelenting. And so they go to school. But, say, brothers, it's tough!

START THIS NEW STORY TODAY

Sir Nicholas Thormonde, a wealthy Englishman, wounded and blinded in one eye in action, starts writing his diary in Paris while the war is still on. He is sick of life. The war has robbed it of all that a young man can find of joy. He tries to amuse himself in the company of several women friends, who, he feels, seek his company for his money and not for the love he craves.

Now Go On With the Story

NINA looked unspeakably shocked.

"What a dreadful idea, Nicholas!—I am thinking of both seriously, not only to pass the time of day, remember."

"That is all lovers are for then, Nina!—I used to think"—

"Never mind what you thought, there is no reason to insult me."

"Nothing was farther from my desire."

Nina's face cleared, as it had darkened ominously

"What will you do if, having married Rochester, you find yourself bored, will you send for Jim again?"

"Certainly not, that would be disaster. I shan't plunge until I feel pretty certain I am going to find the water just deep enough, and not too deep—and if I do make a mistake, well I shall have to stick to it."

"By jove, what a philosopher!" and I laughed. She poured out a second cup of tea and then she looked steadily at me, as though studying a new phase of me

"You are not a bit worse off than Tom Green, Nicholas, and he has not got your money, and Tom is as jolly as anything, and everybody loves him, though he is a hopeless cripple, and can't even look decent, as you will be able to in a year or two. There is no use in having this sentiment about war heroes that would make one put up with their temper, and their cynicism! Everybody is in the same boat — women and men — we chance being maimed by bombs, and we are losing our looks with rough work—for goodness sake stop being so scured"——

I laughed outright—it was all so true.

Friday—Maurice brings people to play bridge every afternoon now. Nina has gone back to England—having decided to take Jim!

It came about in this way—She flew in to tell me the last evening before she left for Havre She was breathless running up the stairs, as something had gone wrong with the lift

"Jim and I are engaged!"

"A thousand congratulations."

"Rochester had a dinner for me on Wednesday night. All the jolliest people in Paris—some of those dear French who have been so nice to us all along, and some of the War Council and the Ryvens and so on—and, do you know, Nicholas—I heard Rochester tell Madame de Clerie the same story about his bon mot when a shell broke at Avicourt—as I had already heard him tell Admiral Short, and Daisy Ryven'—that decided me——. There was an element of self glorification in the modest story—and a man who would tell it three times, is not for me! In ten years I should grow into being the listener victim—I your favorite bathing suit and gambol in the cool dew on the morning grass could not face it! So I said goodbye to him in the corridor, before going up to my room—and I telephoned to Jim, who was in his room on the Cambon side, and he came round in the morning!"

"Was Rochester upset?"

"Rather! but a man of his age—he is forty-two—who can tell a self-story three times is going to get cured soon, so I did not worry."

"And what did Jim say?"

"He was enchanted. He said he knew it would end like that—give a man of forty-two rope enough and he'll be certain to hang himself, he said, and, Oh! Nicholas—Jim is a darling, he is getting quite masterful—I adore him!"

"Senses winning, Nina! Women only like physical masters.'

She grew radiant. Never has she seemed so desirable. "I don't care a fig, Nicholas' If it is sense, well, then, I know it is the best thing in the world, and a woman of my age can't have everything I adore Jim! We are going to be married the first moment he can get leave again—and I shall 'Wangle' him into being a 'red tab'—he has fought enough."

"And if meanwhile he should get maimed like me—what then, Nina?"

She actually paled

"Don't be so horrid, Nicholas—Jim—Oh, I can't bear it!" and being a strict Protestant, she crossed herself—to avert bad luck'

"We won't think of anything but joy and happiness, Nina, but it is quite plain to me you had better have a fortnight at sea."

She had forgotten the allusion and turned puzzled brown eyes upon me

"You know—to balance yourself when you feel you are falling in love"—I reminded her

Oh! It is all stuff and nonsense! I know now I adore Jim—good bye Nicholas"—and she hugged me—as a sister—a mother—and a family friend—and was off down the stairs again

Fifine had brought me in a small gin and seltzer, and it was on the tray, near, so I drank it, and said to myself, "Here is to the Senses—Jolly good things" — and then I telephoned to Suzette to come and dine

* * * *

There is a mole on the left cheek of Suzette, high up near her eye; there are three black hairs in it — I had never seen them until this morning — c'est fini—Je ne peut plus:

* * * *

Of course we have all got moles with three black hairs in them — and the awful moment is when suddenly they are seen That is the tragedy of life—disillusion

I cannot help being horribly introspective, Maurice would agree to whatever I said, so there is no use in talking to him — I rush to this journal, it cannot look at me with fond watery eyes of reproach and disapproval—as Burton would if I let myself go to him.

* * * *

May 16th—The times have been too anxious to write; it is over two months since I opened this book. But it cannot be, it can not be that we shall be beaten —Oh, God—why am I not a man again to fight! The raids are continuous. All the fluffies and nearly every one left Paris in the ticklish March and April times, but now their fears have lulled a little and many have returned, and they rush to cinemas and theatres to kill time, and jump into the rare taxis to go and see the places where the said bombs burst, or Bertha shells, and watch the houses burning and the crushed bodies of the victims being dragged out. They sicken me, this rotten crew. But this is not all France — great, dear, brave France It is only one section of useless society. Today the Duchesse de Courville-Hautevine came to call upon me — mounted all the stairs without even a wheeze (the lift gave out again this morning). What a personality! How I respect her. She has worked magnificently since the war began, her hospital is a wonder, her only son was killed fighting gloriously at Verdun.

She likes to speak her English—"if what good Jeune homme' We are not done yet—I have cut some of my relatives who ran away from Paris—imbeciles! Her tha is our diversion now, and the raids at night—jolly loud things"—and she chuckled, detaching her scissors which had got caught in the purple woolen jersey she wore over her Red Cross uniform. She is quite indifferant to coquetry, this grande dame of the ancient regime'

"My Blesses rejoice in them—Quo volaz vous". War is war, and there is no use in looking Love—Cheer up, young man!"

Then we talked of other things She is witty and downright, and her every thought and action is kindly I love la Duchesse—my mother was her dearest friend

When she had stayed twenty minutes—she came over close to my chair

"I know you would be bitter at not being in the fight, my son," she said, patting me with her once beautiful hand, now red and hardened with work, "so I snatched the moments to come to see you On your one leg you'll defend if the moment should come—but it won't! And you—you wounded ones, spared—can keep the courage up. There! you can at least pray, you have the time—I have not—Mais le Bon Dieu understands—"

And with that she left me, stopping to arrange her tightly curled fringe (she sticks to all old styles) at the lac mirror by the door. I felt better after she had gone—yes, it is that—God—why can't I fight!

IN MIDDLESEX IT'S READING AND REILLY

Arthur K. Reading appears to be winner of the Republican nomination for district attorney of Middlesex County from returns now available.

James C. Reilly of Lowell looks to be the Democratic candidate and is apparently running third in the Republican race.

Somerville returns, although not complete, indicate that Reading carried that city by a good margin. Lowell is believed to have given Gardner Pearson a plurality.

Mayor Haines of Medford admitted at noon that he had no chance and said he was certain the nomination would go to Reading. He would help his rival against the Democratic nominee.

Reading's campaign manager gave out the following figures, which do not include Cambridge and several small communities: Reading, 14,565; Harvey, 10,000; Reilly, 8,600, and Haines approximately 3,500.

Assistant District Attorney Reilly, who has the indorsement of District Attorney Saltonstall, carried Newton with 1,617 against 1,175 for Reading, 819 for Harvey, 245 for Gardner Pearson, 478 for Haines and 204 for William C. Drouet.

What They Say the Day After Big Battle

Governor Channing Cox: "Express to your readers my deep appreciation of their splendid support."

Senator Lodge: "I am greatly pleased at receiving the nomination."

Joseph C. Pelletier: "I think it is better for me to say nothing at all."

John F. Fitzgerald: "I am very happy over the outcome."

Colonel William A. Gaston: "I thank the Democratic Party and promise them a campaign of constructive action."

Congressman Peter F. Tague: "I am pleased beyond measure."

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen: "I accept the verdict."

Joseph B. Ely: "I am grateful to my friends."

Joseph Walker: "I shall continue the fight."

Whipple Thanks Friends, Congratulates Gaston

Sherman L. Whipple today issued a statement thanking the Democrats who voted for him for their support, and concluding with a letter to his successful opponent, Colonel William A. Gaston, congratulating him and wishing him the fullest success.

The statement follows:

"I am grateful for the support of the thousands of Democrats who were loyal to the progressive principles for which I waged my campaign.

"I have been deeply touched by this loyalty and especially by the devotion of the Democratic leaders throughout the State, who have so untiringly and unselfishly worked in behalf of my candidacy. I have written the following note to Colonel Gaston:

"'My Dear Colonel Gaston: I tender you my congratulations on your election to contest the re-election of Senator Lodge. I wish for you the fullest measure of success.'"

FIRST CORRECT RETURNS BY AMERICAN

The correct returns first—this was the slogan of the Boston American, arranged for weeks before the primaries and carried out yesterday to the letter.

In face of the biggest primary vote ever cast in the commonwealth of Massachusetts the Boston American was able to furnish its readers, by telephone, bulletin and special extra editions, the very latest, up-to-date minute returns.

NO CHANCE OF ERROR.

The Boston American was the first newspaper in Boston to publish the figures showing the enormous lead of Governor Cox over Attorney-General Allen in the race for the Republican nomination for governor. It was the Boston American that gave the first authentic figures of the race run by Sherman A. Whipple and Colonel William A. Gaston for the Democratic nomination for United States senator.

While the special extras were on the streets every half hour from the time the polls closed late in the afternoon until early morning when the final returns were tabulated, a corps of telephone operators correctly answered hundreds of queries over the telephone.

GAVE RESULTS FIRST.

Special wires of the Associated Press, carried directly into the editorial rooms of the Boston American, the service of the International News Service and the Boston American's own corps of staff correspondents in every town rushed in the returns.

A staff of experienced tabulators at City Hall relayed the Boston City vote to the tabulators in the editorial rooms as fast as the figures were received from the various precincts.

A triple checking system made mistakes an impossibility. Every return as it was received from one source was checked up with those received from other sources and any discrepancy corrected. As a result the figures published by the Boston American were correct.

VOTE FOR SULLIVAN IS BIG SURPRISE

One of the surprises of the primaries was the heavy vote polled by Mayor Peter Sullivan of Worcester who ran second to Fitzgerald with 47,864.

This total coupled with the nomination of Doherty over Michael A. O'Leary, former chairman of the Democratic State Committee, is causing Democratic leaders much concern. Doherty, who was indorsed by Lomasney, had 58,497 as against 49,000 for O'Leary, according to the latest returns.

REFUSE WARRANT FOR WOMAN VOTER

The police were today refused a warrant for the arrest of Anna M. Sardina, No. 286 Hanover street, the first woman to be held up in connection with an alleged attempt at illegal voting. The police applied for a warrant on the charge of attempting to vote under the name of another. The police allege the woman called for a ballot under the name of Mary M. Sardina.

VOTE CONFIRMS STRAW BALLOT OF AMERICAN

It doped.

The Boston American straw ballot stands the test of the returns thus far in.

The straw vote would win at least two to one. He wins.

Tony said Fitzgerald would win. He wins.

Lodge's vote is doing to Walker just what the straw voters said it would do.

The straw voters said the candidates would run in this order for District Attorney: Pelletier, O'Brien, Foley, Ford, Walsh, Donaghue and Patron.

Present returns show they are running: Pelletier, O'Brien, Foley, Ford, Donaghue, Walsh.

Benton now leads the real vote. He led the straws.

The straw vote gave Mr. Whipple "a very narrow margin," with an expression that it was exceedingly doubtful. Mr. Gaston now leads by a narrow margin.

WRIGHT HAS EASY PATH IN HAMPDEN

Springfield, Sept. 13.—District Attorney Charles H. Wright polled as many vote for the Republican nomination as both of his opponents, Richard J. Talbot and John H. Madden of Springfield, combined. The outcome of the Democratic contest between Lyman Gray of Westfield and James H. Mulcare of Springfield was uncertain early today, with Mulcare in the lead. Jay R. Benton was leading the field of six candidates for the Republican nomination for Attorney-General by a large margin with Harold D. Wilson second.

BURRILL IS WINNER IN COUNCIL CONTEST

Charles L. Burrill, former State treasurer, defeated Councillor William H. Dolben of Somerville for the Republican nomination for councillor in the 4th district, his margin being about 3,500 votes. Dolben was elected by the Legislature this year to fill a vacancy in the council occasioned by the death of John C. F. Slayton of Melrose.

GIANTS HAVE NO EASY TASK TO STAND OFF THE PIRATES

YANKEES ALSO HAVE THEIR TROUBLES

Then, too, weak teams have been encountered, that is, teams in the three lower berths of the second division, the Brooklyns, Phillies and Braves.

Yankees' Pitching Staff Has Been Going Nicely of Late

The Yankees' pitching staff, Mays, Jones, Shawkey, Bush and Hoyt, has been going nicely of late, and good things are hoped for from their following in that quarter. The Browns have only ... her as a star, and have been winning their games of late by heavy hitting. They far excel the Yankees in hitting, leading the league, and in run-making.

The Yankees will meet the Browns Saturday. It will be Shocker against Shawkey. After this three-game series the Yankees will meet the Tigers on Tuesday for what promises to be a hard fought series, and will wind up with Cleveland. The Indians hold no love for them, and will be out to tumble them.

In fact, the Yankees and Giants are just about hated around the circuits, because of buying high-class players. Only real ball will win favor.

Enlarge Park With Big Series Games in View

St. Louis, Sept. 13.—Carpenters today began adding box seats back of the third base line at Sportsmen's Park, for handling the crowds in the Yankees - Browns three game series starting next Saturday, and for possible use in the world's series.

early 10,000 requests for reservations for the world's series have been received by Business Manager Quinn.

PLENTY STARS IN FRANKLIN MEET

More than 100 athletes will compete in the Electric Light meet on the Dean Academy Athletic Field, Franklin, this evening. Top-notchers of the B. A. A., St. Alphonsus A. A., Providence A. C. and Pawtucket Y. M. C. A. will be on hand, along with a number of colleges and prep school stars. The meet is under the direction of Edward L. Grant Post, A. L. "Phil" Doherty, chairman of the committee, feels that the novelty of a night outdoor meet and the class of athletes competing will attract all followers of outdoor sports in this section.

Phil Doherty.

BUFF AND VILLA BOUT PUT OVER

New York, Sept. 13.—Johnny Buff, the flyweight champion, and Pancho Villa, will settle their argument tomorrow evening at Ebbets Field. It was originally intended to have the two midgets battle last evening, but the morning rain and the wicked clouds scared the management and induced them to order a postponement.

The two fighters appeared at the ball park and weighed in all right and then left for their respective homes. They will not have to weigh in again.

JOE BURMAN OUT IN LIMELIGHT

Nate Lewis agrees with Eddie Meade that Joe Burman wouldn't fight Joe Lynch around East Chicago. Nate adds, however, that all that Meade wanted for Lynch was ... Meade wanted Burman to make 118 pounds while the champion strolled into the ring at catchweights."

AMATEUR BOUTS TO GIVE THRILLS

Have you got those election blues? You know what we mean; that feeling some people get after they themselves or somebody they are interested in gets walloped at the polls.

If so, Billy Cuddy of the St. Joseph's Club has a cure for your trouble. It is the amateur boxing tourney which will be staged at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square, tomorrow night.

There will be bouts at 112, 118, 124, 135 and 147 pounds. All of the local simon pure heroes have sent in their entries and so there will be all kinds of thrills.

And 'tis said that the kind of thrills they hand out at amateur boxing shows are good for election blues.

TORONTO TEAM TO INVADE U. S.

Toronto, Sept. 13.—The University of Toronto soccer team will play leading college and amateur teams in the United States early in October, when it makes the first trip of the kind the university has ever permitted. The first game will be against Princeton, October 9.

Triple Play by Four of White Sox

The White Sox turned in a four-man triple play in their tussle with Cleveland yesterday, but this bit of sharp fielding failed to help them along the victory road, as Speaker's club triumphed, 3 to 2. Eddie Collins, Johnson, Shecley and Maryan pulled off the triple killing.

WESLEYAN FOOTBALL SQUAD OPENS MONDAY

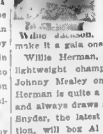
Middletown, Ct., Sept. 13.—The call for candidates for the Wesleyan football squad has been sent out by Coach Fred Martin and Captain Charles Smith to about 30 men, who will report for the first practice on Andrus Field next Monday. Uniforms will be distributed Tuesday.

Coach Martin will be assisted by Dr. Edgar Faure, an old Oberlin College star, and Dick Steele, Wesleyan 1921, a crack halfback.

Old men who will report are Captain Smith and Laonanke, tackles; Conway and Fyne, guards; King, end, and Scriggins and Al and John Fricke in the backfield.

JACKSON TRAINS FOR KID BROWN

Willie Jackson will spend the remainder of the week prancing around the gymnasium in New York. Willie is scheduled to fight Harry Kid Brown next Monday evening at the reopening of the Olympia in Philadelphia. This will be Willie's first appearance for some time, and he wants to make it a gala one.



Willie Jackson.

Willie Herman, the New Jersey lightweight champion, will tackle Johnny Mealey on the same card. Herman is quite a favorite in Philly and always draws a big house. Lew Snyder, the latest southpaw sensation, will box Al Willis the same evening.

Michaels Fights Thomas

Matchmaker Frank Flournoy announced yesterday that he has signed Bobby Michaels and Andy Thomas to mingle in the twelve-round semi-final to the Lew Tendler-Pal Moran fifteen-round decision contest at the Metropolitan Velodrome next Monday night.

FOOTBALL GETS UNDER WAY AT HARVARD

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

The Stadium isn't an ark, nor is Bob Fisher a Noah; consequently the opening practice session of the Harvard football squad didn't amount to much.

It did reveal, however, that 112 young men are sufficiently in love with the dear old alma mater to offer themselves willing sacrifices for her glory on the gridiron.

That's quite a parcel of young men, and yet it did not include all who will make up the squad before the week is out, two notable absentees being George Owen and Winnie Churchill of last year's varsity.

But the number as it stands gives the Crimson coaches a fraction over ten candidates for each varsity position, and rather indicates that Harvard will be back again on the football map ready to tackle its rather interesting schedule three weeks hence.

Coach Fisher and his aids were given no real opportunity to look at the legs of the young army of Crimsonites. They look at the legs first over across the Charles. If a fellow hasn't thewy calves and bulging thighs he must show compensating assets before he makes much of a hit with Harvard's football powers-that-be, for there is a lot of leg work in the good old game of the latticed greensward and if you haven't the legs for this leg work you're sort of out of luck.

Stocking Stretchers Have All the Best of It.

But you can't look at legs when they're wading knee-deep in mud and water, so after attempting a few of the usual opening day stunts Coach Fisher and his aids sent the young men chasing a few laps around the Stadium and then into the locker building for a shower bath and rub down.

Sixteen of the men reporting for the opening practice bore names familiar to Harvard varsity football; they were Captain Buell, Dan Holder, Roscoe Fitz, Prill Khanbardt, Bradford, Charley Hubbard, Percy Jenkins, Eskie Clark, Edwin Gerbke, Sydby Grew, Hartley, Holmes, Southard, Chapin, Pfaffman and Charley Eastman, all of whom saw varsity service with the varsity teams of last year or the year before.

Saw Service With Second Varsity on Freshman Teams

The bulk of the remaining candidates saw service with the second varsity or freshman teams of last year and come to the coaches with considerable schooling in the Harvard style of play, so figuring that and the other, Harvard will not be so badly off as many were inclined to think.

Clark Must Have Followed the Eskimo Diet of Blubber

Eskie Clark, who hails from Alaska, must have followed the Eskimo diet of blubber and gumdrops during the vacation season for he is reported as weighing well over 180 pounds, whereas his playing weight in the Yale game last year was but a trifle over 160.

Others show corresponding increases in weight, and while the Ellmatadons—Horr, Cross, MacKay and Quaal—whose average weight is 235 pounds, probably overlap any of the Crimson giants, the Harvard huskies carry enough to make our best ribbon clerks envious.

Coach Fisher hoped for good weather this afternoon, for sorting 112 or more athletes is quite a task and he is anxious to get busy with the best one-third of that number as soon as possible.

Those who reported yesterday included:

Tackles — Eastman, Hubbard, Hoag, McPherson, Miller, Harrington, Rohler, Rhunhardt, Rice, Bassett, Kelly, Schwartz, Wagner, Meyer, R. Hubbard, Macomber, Hamilton, Curtis, Cooper, Raymond, Murphy, Cassidy, Kanter, Self, Hobson, McGillaan.

Guards—Dunker, Coggan, Cooper, Grew, Short, C. Hubbard, Wood, Savory, Mahoney, Davenport.

Centres—Clark, Post, Crowley, Snow, Greenough, Bradford, Holder, Curran, Deier, Lewis, Green.

VIAU HORSES WILL BE SOLD SATURDAY

New York, Sept. 13.—In addition to the thoroughbreds of M. L. Schwartz and the Goodstone Stable, which will be offered for sale in the paddock at Belmont Park on next Saturday, before the racing hour, the Fasig-Tipton Co. will also offer the horses belonging to Mrs. Louise Viau. The Viau stable now consists of but four head, Firm Friend, Georgia, Billy McLaughlin and the two-year-old Little Colt.

GIRL SWIMMING CHAMP IN RACE

Miss Gertrude Ederle, the latest and greatest swimming sensation, will make her final outdoor appearance of the year in the open-air pool at Brighton Beach. The date for the momentous occasion has not been definitely set, but it probably will be Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

Miss Ederle.

Miss Ederle will make her last appearance in the open for 1923 with an attempt to lower the world's records for 200 and 220 yards. It is planned to arranged a handicap race in order to bring out the utmost speed of this fifteen year-old marvel of the Women's Swimming Association.

TERRY MARTIN ON PROVIDENCE CARD

You can't keep a squirrel on the ground. Neither can you keep Terry Martin, Providence bantamweight, idle. This rugged young ring warrior, who all but knocked out Danny Edwards the other night, will have Terry McHugh as an opponent in a twelve-round bout at Providence Saturday afternoon. The show will be staged at the Hall Park under the direction of the Disabled War Veterans.

Lynch And Wolfe To Fight For New Title

New York, Sept. 13.—Joe Lynch, the world's bantamweight champion, who is becoming too heavy for that class, will meet Kid Wolfe, of Cleveland, for the junior feather weight title, the championship of a new class created by the Walker Law under which the New York State Boxing commission operated, at Madison Square Garden on Sept. 22. The weight will be 122 pounds, the fighters to weigh in at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the contest.

It will be the first fight for the new title. It means that eventually Lynch will resign his bantamweight championship which he regained when he defeated Johnny Buff who won it from Pete Herman. Buff, however retains his flyweight championship and will defend it on Thursday night at Brooklyn against Pancho Villa.

DOWNES TO FIGHT PHINNEY BOYLE

South Boston Johnny Downes has had a much-needed rest in New Hampshire, and has carefully rounded himself into his old-time form. He would like to be crowned the New England lightweight champion before the snow flies. His manager has him signed for three engagements materialize within two weeks.

Johnny Downes.

The first will materialize when he clashes with Phinney Boyle at Lowell Thursday night. As Boyle is going great at the present time, Downes will have to be at his best to dispose of the Spindle City lightweight, who had an easy time outpointing Louis Hanion of Nashua on Labor Day.

RACE WILL SETTLE TURF CHAMPIONSHIP

New York, Sept. 13.—It is not beyond the realm of possibility that the Jockey Club Cup race next Saturday will feature as a three-year-old championship on the side. The four most formidable of this division—Kai-Sang, Bunting, Pillory and Lucky Hour—are all engaged and if the track is fast all will go to the post. Kai-Sang, Pillory and Lucky Hour will doubtless go irrespective of track conditions, but Bunting cannot "mud."

CHAMPION IS GETTING FIT FOR BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY

Jack Dempsey wants to fight Harry Wills at the earliest possible date. This is the information Johnny Mahoney of the Faneuil Club has received from Jack Kearns, manager of "Tiger Jack."

Harry Wills

Tom O'Rourke, matchmaker of the Republic Club of New York, is anxious to stage the championship match at the Polo Grounds on Columbus Day. He believes that a contest between the world's champion and the colored heavyweight title holder will draw more than a million dollars.

Kearns believes that the time to stage the tussle between Dempsey and Wills is this year. Tex Rickard wants the match for the Summer of 1923, but the offer from the Republic Club to put on the big frolic at the Polo Grounds this year has changed conditions.

Paddy Mullins told this writer recently that he believed it would be best to hold the bout before the Fall elections. Being wise in the ways of the world, Paddy realized that the promises of politicians often do not amount to a great deal after they have taken office.

Dempsey has been working out at Stillman's gym in New York, which leads one to believe he is getting ready for a real fight.

The champion will be in Boston Friday to appear at the Faneuil A. C.'s show at Mechanics Building. Thousands of boxing fans were disappointed when rain prevented Dempsey from showing at Braves Field, but now that the Faneuil Club is putting its big classic indoors everybody should be happy.

Could Greb Win Over Anderson or Norfolk?

Could Harry Greb defeat either Lee Anderson or Kid Norfolk? We have been asked this question by a number of persons since the thrilling battle between Anderson and Norfolk at the Arena the other night. We do not believe there is much chance of this question being answered in the ring. Greb, a fast clever boxer, has not any desire to try conclusions with either of the colored warriors. Matchmaker Tom Goodwin of the Arena Club tried to get Greb as an opponent for Anderson, but failed. The reason was very apparent to those fans who saw the treble at the Arena. Anderson is not only fast, but he is also a terrific puncher and would stand a chance of kayoing Greb. The latter is a light tapper and wouldn't be able to hurt Anderson. The negro is aggressive and a sweet puncher and would be bound to get Greb into trouble sooner or later.

Boston fans would give a great deal to see Greb enter a ring with either Norfolk or Anderson. But, unfortunately, there does not appear to be much of a chance of such a bout being arranged.

Wrestling Season Gets Going at the Grand

Wrestling fans will come in for their own once more tomorrow night when the Old Howard management stages its opening tournament at the Grand Opera House. Paul Bowser is back on the job as matchmaker, which means that Boston mat devotees will witness plenty of torrid battles this season.

George Kotsonaros, Greek champion, will have Cyclone Ross of New York as an opponent in the feature match, which will be to a positive finish. Ross is a German grappler and has made a great reputation for himself in tussles throughout the East. Incidentally he is wrestling instructor at Bothner's School in New York.

Frank Lurich, Lithuanian lightweight, will also be on the job with John Carlson as an opponent. The latter is a Dane and is of the opinion he will conquer the Lithuanian star, will take on Ed Wills of Worcester.

It is the first mat carnival arranged for this city since June and is expected to attract a large number of fans. Mat devotees are hungry for some action. They will be satisfied tomorrow night.

Diamond Stars Seek Dates

Louis Herrick, end on the Colgate team of 1919, has been elected coach of Allen Military School football team for the coming season. Prospects are none too bright, as many of this year's candidates are green and lacking in weight.

The first workout has been called for September 26. Following is the schedule arranged by Mr. Chalmers, Faculty Athletic Director. Oct. 1 open; Oct. 14, Groton at Groton; Oct. 21, open; Oct. 28, Worcester Trade at West Newton; Nov. 4, Middlesex at Concord; Nov. 11, open; Nov. 18, Huntington at West Newton; Nov. 25 Thayer Academy at West Newton.

Jack Thompson to Oppose Dempsey Here Friday

The fans are bound to get some real action when Jack Dempsey enters the ring in Mechanics Building, Friday night, for Jack Thompson, the negro heavyweight who has battled ten times with Harry Wills and gone the distance in every bout, has been picked as Tiger Jack's opponent.

If the champion decides to sign he will find the giant negro quite willing to mix it with him. In his fights with Wills, Thompson has stood toe to toe with the negro contender for the title, but Harry was never able to hit hard enough to floor Thompson.

SHERLOCK REFUSES TO RESIGN AS COACH

By FRED C. LANE.

The rumor current since the closing of school last June that Coach Edward "Sip" Sherlock was to resign as athletic coach of Commerce High was spiked by the mentor himself today on his return from his farm at Meredith, N. H., where he has been spending the Summer.

Skip Sherlock

Boston's popular schoolboy leader, who was asked to resign by Nathaniel J. Young, director of physical education of Boston's high schools, because of a mixup at the Medford-Commerce dual meet last winter at the East Armory, has thrown down the gauntlet, refusing to accede to the demand of Director Young.

Today the headmasters of the various high schools will be asked to send in their nominations for the coaching position in their respective schools, and among those names will appear Coach Sherlock's, sponsored by Downey, headmaster of the Back Bay school.

It, is doubtful whether Mr. Young will accept Coach Sherlock's name, and should he turn it down, as expected, one of the bitterest battles in scholastic circles will be fought.

Coach Sherlock has coached at Commerce since 1913. In that time he has won three football championships, one baseball championship and twelve track championships.

In his career as coach such men as Bob Fisher, head football coach at Harvard, Dexter Draper, this year's line coach at the University of Penn, Jake Driscoll, collegiate quarter-mile champion, Dave White, Elmer Smith, Con O'Brien, Tommy Swan, George Mullins, Marcell Zutter, and others too numerous to mention have been brought out first by Coach Sherlock.

Should he pass out of the picture, one of the most successful coaches that Boston High schools have had since the days of John O'Reilly will be lost.

Postpone Harness Races

White River Jct., Vt., Sept. 13.—Yesterday's racing events were called off on account of poor track conditions. There will be five races today, weather and track permitting.

BOXING LID PRIED OFF AT SALEM

Salem will get back on the boxing map Friday night when the Naumkeag A. A. stages its opening show of the season.

Irish Kid Williams of Holyoke will toss punches in the general direction of Tommy Corbiery of Gloucester in the feature bout of ten rounds. These men should furnish plenty of action.

Concrete Billy Myers will have Al Larone of Salem as an opponent in an eight-session affair White Walsh of Salem will clash with Eddie Dunn of Bridgeport in a six-rounder, while another six-session affair will find Young Garro of Boston battling Frankie Barrett of this city.

BROCKTON FAIR TRACK MEET DATE SET

The Brockton Fair will close up the outdoor track season. The nine tenth observance of this classic will open Thursday, October 5 at 1:30, and the "modified Marathon" of 10 miles is booked for 6:30. Ten prizes and a time prize are offered for the long jaunt. It is expected that Jimmy Henigan, his brother Tom and many other local distance stars will enter.

Jimmy Henigan

One of the features will be one-mile relay races, in which several club, college and school quartets are expected to take part.

The events open to registered amateurs include the hundred yard and 220-yard dashes, quarter, half, mile and three-mile runs, and 120-yard low hurdles. There will also be Plymouth County title races of 100 and 880 yards. All open events are handicap. The field events include broad jump, high jump, shotput and pole vault. Prizes will be awarded for places, and special awards will be made for high-point score and for best performances breaking the fair record for high jump and pole vault.

BOB MARTIN WILL BATTLE GREB

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Sept. 16—Following his probable reinstatement by the State Boxing Commission in connection with the Rosenberg affair Harry Greb, light weight champion, will sign articles for a fight with Bob Martin, A. E. F. champion, at Madison Square Garden on September 22. Greb left here for the meeting of the Boxing Commission in New York today, at which time he believes he will be reinstated.

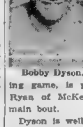
BOBBY DYSON IN LYNN OPENER

Boxing will be resumed in Lynn next Monday night when the Casino A. C. reopens with two of the best bantams in the country in the feature bout. Casino Hall, the home of this popular North Shore club, has been entirely renovated.



Bobby Dyson.

Bobby Dyson of New Bedford, one of the hardest hitting bantams in the boxing game, is paired with Tommy Ryan of McKeesport, Pa., in the main bout.

Dyson is well known to the boxing fans of New England and has appeared at the Casino several times and always pleased the patrons of the Lynn club. While little is known of Ryan in this section his manager, Hughie Shannon of Buffalo who also directs the ring affairs of Jack Perry, Steve Choynski, Tonny Dennis and other star boxers, says that in Ryan he believes he has the best 120-pound boy in the country.

Most of Ryan's boxing has been done in the Middle West, where he has proved a sensation by defeating such sterling bantams as Carl Tremaine, Abe Attel Goldstein, Bernie Hahn the crack Virginia bantam, Patsy Scanlon and his defeat of Eddie O'Dowd of Columbus, O., who holds a decision over Dyson proved a surprise to western judges of boxing who regarded O'Dowd as championship timber until his defeat by Ryan.

FOUR RIDERS IN BIG RACE AT REVERE

George Chapman has a double incentive to win the one-hour race at Revere tonight. The race at the Butler Bowl will be contested by four riders, Chapman and Carman of this country and Linart and Verkeyn of Belgium. Carman now leads the motor chasers in the number of victories for the season and stands at the head of the official point column. If Chapman defeats Carman he will assume the lead in the point column.

Victor Linart.

But Linart and Verkeyn have no intention of having this hour race devolve into a duel between the two Americans. The Belgians have a little score of their own to settle in this race, which is for the Pilgrim Cup, 16 inches in height. Verkeyn is riding as fast as any pace follower in the country, as was shown by his brilliant victory at the Revere track last Saturday night.

An added attraction will be an unlimited Australian pursuit race between Ralph Spiers and Billy Cupit. This pair are equally matched as to speed and endurance, and it looks like a toss up, with a chance of the pursuit going some miles.

TWILIGHT SERIES TO OPEN TONIGHT

The opening game between the North Cambridge K. of C. and the Cornets of Lynn for the championship of the Boston Twilight League will be played tonight at Russell Field, North Cambridge, and the second game will be played at Little River Playgrounds, Lynn, on Thursday evening.

The heavy rainfall caused the opening date to be postponed, Manager Leahy of North Cambridge won the toss and the opening game will be played at North Cambridge.

The games at North Cambridge will begin at 5:15 p. m. and at Lynn at 6 p. m.

HARVARD SUFFERS FIRST CASUALTY

Dan Holder, likely occupant of a tackle berth in the Harvard line, proved to be first patient of Dr. Richards, newly-appointed football physician.

At the beginning of Harvard's initial practice, while the aspirants were taking turns falling on the ball, Holder plumped onto the wily pigskin and dislocated his shoulder.

He will probably not be able to don a uniform again for a week or ten days.

The Famous Portland Vase

THE most valuable piece of pottery is the Portland vase in the British Museum. It was wantonly smashed to pieces by a man named Lloyd and marvelously repaired. The vase is 2,000 years old and is now worth $50,000.

Desert Love

By Joan Conquest

WOULD YOU?

Jill Carden, a beautiful and daring young English girl, brought up in a conventional home, burns her bridges behind her and lives in an oasis, far from her own race, for the love of an Arab chief. She was seventeen, motherless and much sought after by reason of her great wealth, which, however, disappeared when her father's will was read. After getting a position as traveling companion she finds herself at Suez. She gets her first glimpse of Hahmed, the Camel King, and tosses a coin to decide whether she shall speak to him or go back to England. It falls heads and she is committed to the Sheik and the desert. He takes her to Arabia, where he builds a beautiful home for her She gradually feels love for the Sheik dawning.

"MOST annoying indeed—great negligence on the part of the city police to allow a holdup like this at this hour of the afternoon. No wonder Egypt's in the mess of ruins it is if this is the way traffic has always been regulated," fumed and fretted Sir Timothy, whilst Mary Bingham twirled her sunshade over her hat and gazed unseeingly at the domes, cupolas, and minarets of the distant mosque of the Mohamet Ali; and the thin heir of the race of Grantham pondered upon the allurements of the yashmak, which hid all but the eyes of the few Eastern women who glanced timidly in passing at the occupants of the motor cars.

"Now then, dearies," smiled the irate old knight's comfortable wife, "don't you take on so, though I do allow it's a nuisance, considering I have to get into my apricot satin tonight, with all those books. Pity Sir John Wetherbourn ain't—isn't here; it u'd never have happened, I'm sure if he had been seeing the way he has with him though I can't say as ow I approve of him so young and good looking—and all single fellers have been around wanting me about so much to him'self. I do wonder what 'annened —all right, lad, there's a tanner a-slip between the stitch and the noovah rich lip, happened to the girl he's looking for. Over a year ago you say Mary, my dear, she did disappear, I at Ismaeil, and not heard of since and Sir John secured Peyer with all the references, I believe, from the high floor, and no, had the result to show for it, eh, Timothy, lad? Do you think he was in love with her, or is it a case of—oh what's them two words which mean that you can't think of anything but one thing

"Isle fixe," enlightened Diana Latham

"Eyedyfix" Sounds like one of those cocktails that heathen fellow-mebbe'd always trying to pass on me with, eh, Miss Diana," chuckled the old manufacturer, who who shipped the cloth of arabesque and even reverenced the fr

"You bet he was in love, all right, deserted and almost crazy over some effete English snipe at the condemned, beastly girl, who had treated a woman like him as if he were a worm. Some of these English! Why, I'd rather be the lowest native chief's leper than be the best-off English girl that ever lived, I'll bet. Are you thinking about it, and dying? Everybody is, and she was mad about him, beautiful as well. Dear me, I would feel her pulse and see if she's not dying of love for him. Oh but we are intriguing, aren't we, Miss Latham? Yes, and I was for a while low on the list. Isn't she pretty girl ever have such a nose and jet black as the ocean? Oh, the whole of old Cairo is coming this way."

Even as she spoke two Arabs, mounted on splendid horses, and wearing long spears, dashed past the car, shouting commands, which sent the throng of donkeys and foot-passengers flying in all directions, whilst a stream of camels, dancing and waving their long necks to the music.

Behind and round them walked scores of young men in snow-white galabeah, their impassive dignity of mien and face surrounded by the scarlet tarboush, chanting that old Egyptian marriage song of which the music score was lost some few thousand years, lying perhaps securely hidden in a secret chamber, undiscovered in the ruins of Karnak, but which song, without a single alteration of note or word, has descended from Rameses the Second down through the history-laden centuries to us, the discoverers and worshippers of ragtime

But the greatest crush surged round two camels which walked majestically through the throng, seemingly as oblivious of the excited multitude as the one made herself out to be of the man who walked beside her with a fantasia in whip and the other of the golden chains which fastened her to the blackest nonpareil of all Africa.

Upon the one of the golden chains, rested a golden palanquin, closed with curtains of softest white satin, a-glitter with precious stones.

Around the brute's neck hung garlands of flowers from its harness chimed golden bells of sweetest tone, while tassels of silver swung from the jewel encrusted net covering her shining coat

What or who was inside, no one seemed to be able to, adequately say, though the murmur went up above all of some priceless treasure.

There was no doubt as to the color of the camels.

Hamed Habibi! Habibi! rose the encouraging cry from old and young, while the camels rang their bells in the excitement, and made a show of increasing the speed of their long legged progression through the throng of spectatorial sandy roses and shouts arose and fell from the pavements, roofs, and balconies or were wafted with curious force from the impassive men who had his camel harnessed with silver bells at one side and his camel on the other.

The crushing throng was added to this delicious moment of festival by the simple and delightful distribution of golden coin, gaily minted, by which largesse regarded with laughter, and still shriller cries, and thwack of stick on dark brown pate and cries of pain upon the meeting of youthful ivories in the aged ankle or wrist.

No doubt about it, Cairo, real Cairo I mean, had been in an uproar from the moment two special trains had chugged into the Central Station a few hours back crowned and uncrowned queens travel in comfort all the world over, a comfort of overheated special trains, the most stolen part of the best the most skilful chauffeur allied to the most speedy car, an elaboration of the luncheon basket, and the heartening effect of strips of red baize but the comfort of a church pew compared to the downy recesses of a Chesterfield, against the comport and regal luxury of Jill's mode of traveling.

Surrounded by an armed guard under the all-quiet control of Black Mustapha, armed to the teeth, empowered by Mrs Grundy in the shape of, as I should say, represented in the shapeless person of a dusky duenna of many moons a good heart and a vitriolic tongue, who only peeped from behind the sombre curtains of her middle-aged palanquin, Jill started on her wedding journey Over a carpet of flowers through a long lane of palm leaves, held by veiled maidens so as to form an arch, she passed, whilst the sweetness of the girls' voices rose to the tops of the acacia and mimosa trees, and gigantic date palms, in the Egyptian bridal song.

In no way did Jill's return across the desert and through the mountains to the canal's edge resemble the out going.

She had looked round for the man she loved, but had seen him only when, with great pomp and circumstance, she landed on the other side

The whole of the town had turned out, so that the white car in which she made the short trajet between the landing place and the station passed between a lane lined with male faces, dusky, dark brown, and light tan, thousands of soft eyes sparkling over the all hiding, all-attractive yashmak, and a dotted line, well in the forefront of the leather-brown, European physiognomies, of those who nudged and pointed, exclaiming aloud, so that their words carried even into the interior of the closed car, upon their luck of seeing a real native show

With grave obeisance to the woman, Hahmed the Arab had entered his special train, which preceded Jill's by ten minutes, so that when she arrived at Cairo Central Station, surrounded by her armed guard, and with her duenna rocking painfully by her side in a pair of over small shoes, a little scared at the sea of faces, and the echo of the voices of those who stood outside, kept in order by the swash-buckling native police of fantastic uniform, she had stood transfixed, wondering what on earth she should do next.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

By Ann Lisle

I felt very tender—very loving and very grateful that we were again friends, and sisters, as, perhaps, we've never been before. But I knew that until Virginia relented and takes Phoebe back to her place in her heart I can never be contented or at peace with myself—and life.

LEANNE STONE, observed, watched SUSPICIOUSLY

After a moment that brought us very close, I hurried from Virginia's room and down to the breakfast room, where I found a haggard Carlotta, a gracious Pat and a slightly sullen Rosa awaiting my coming. Rosa's boys were too well bred to show any signs of amazement at the sudden revelation that there were other folks in our household. Leanne Stone, however, watched me suspiciously to see if there were any sign of alteration in my manner. It was evident that he didn't know whether I was aware that Rosa had not been alone in the Summer house when I stumbled across her the night before. And it was equally evident that he meant to make it clear to me that Wayne Parkinson was just as likely to be the culprit as he.

But when we got out to the driveway and the waiting cars, Mr. Parkinson innocently blundered out with a remark which the other man and Rosa guiltily showed they considered nothing short of betrayal.

"Guess I'd better drive, Leanne, old top," he declared. "I can't count on your having a steady hand and a watchful eye after the way you want browsing around until all hours last night."

"If you're afraid of my driving, Park, you'd better get yourself invited to the other car," snapped Mr. Stone, his eyes narrowing appraisingly as he studied my face for signs of reaction.

"Oh—might I and be welcome?" asked Park with such boyish friendliness that Pat responded at once with a cordial invitation

"Say, this is great!" young Parkinson cried, striding toward the car in which Carlotta had already taken refuge.

"So now I must sing—how you say—'Off with the old love, on with the new'" quoted Rosa gaily

But there was menace in her tone.

"Anyone mind if we arrange the car with the women-folks having a hen party in the tonneau?" I asked, making arbitrarily seeing and climbing into one of the limousines as we prepared to drive to town after our week-end at Dreamwold.

"No one could object to your having things any way you wanted them, Alanna," replied Pat with instant response to my thought that Carlotta might conceivably not be in the mood to chat with a strange young man. "And this gives me a chance to get acquainted with our guest. Hop in, Mr. Parkinson, I'm driving this morning."

"Mary"—ROMANCE OF A BOSTON BUSINESS GIRL

By Lenore Meherin

Start This Story Today

MARY KELLY wins the post of private secretary to HALL DAWSON, a dynamic promoter with offices in Water street. She instinctively fears him. After the conclusion of a big deal he calls her his mascot and gives her a check for $100, which she accepts with misgivings. Reassured by Dawson, however, she plunges into her work, dreaming of the day she will be his partner. Mary goes to see the parade of the returning Yankee Division and meets PAT SULLIVAN, her childhood sweetheart. JACK MAHONEY, a young millionaire, declares his love for her. Pat takes Mary riding and she realizes she loves him only. She receives a letter of proposal from Mahoney and answers it with a refusal. Pat has a row with Dawson.

SHE had intended marrying as soon as she came home from the vacation, then Angelo was ordered to go East, and the marriage was delayed. What troubled me more than anything was mu. She insisted that she felt better than she had in years—but sometimes her face looked gray to me and I thought I could see a faint blue line about her mouth. I used to hurry home to help with the dinner and then she would laugh at me. "You foolish child," she would say, "you'll spoil your mother making me sit down so much."

There was a lull, too, at the office. All Dawson's schemes lagged. He had phoned to Pat, swore and paced the room at the crisp refusals he received and then apparently he had dropped the matter. Dawson worked day and night till he grew nervous, hot eyed, thin. Sometimes he didn't even come near the office for days. I had idle time—too much—to dream, to smile at the subtle flattery of Allan Bruce's attention.

Jack was away and Pat was giving every hour he could spare from sleep to overtime. He wanted money to tide over the idleness he knew was coming.

These are the excuses I make to myself, but the truth is that from the first moment I felt his magnetic yellow eyes on mine, Allan Bruce fascinated me. There was about him a mystery, a gloom that piqued the curiosity it aroused. He had wandered all over the world; the air of one who has been in strange places and seen incredible things hung about him. There seemed as one who stands above our petty world, pitilessly the laws, the restrictions, the feeble virtues he has outgrown. In his mouth virtue became the fine flower of stupidity and morality but the garment of cowardice. This brilliant defiance fired in me the fatal instinct to reform. I felt that I must defend the ideals I cherished. I must convince him of their worth. Allan Bruce became a willing pen-tent. He permitted me, as he had probably permitted scores before, the luxury of redeeming him. In the end I did not fasten the noose of conventing about his neck, but he slipped it from mine.

He rang me up. He wanted me to sit for a portrait. I hung up the receiver, flushed with pride. I told him I would let him know. Then I went into the dining room where ma and dad were sitting and told them. Ma put down her paper, took off her specs and smiled.

"I don't I told you you were a darlin', Mary; and you laughed at me. Now you see what an artist he is."

When Bruce called the next day I told him I would go. June was almost as much excited as I was. We went together to the studio. The door was open on a great room backed, prim little antique, and another cheap and roomy as a small davenport.

Allan Bruce in a blue smock came out to meet us. June's eyes opened. I knew she thought him attractive.

"Have you brought the sacred spark, Mona Lisa? I have the fire ready to light."

"I brought what you ordered. I couldn't come without it—my face. It was never sacred before."

Allan Bruce in the blue smock came out to meet us. June's eyes opened. I knew she thought him attractive.

"Have you brought the sacred spark, Mona Lisa? I have the fire ready to light."

"I brought what you ordered. I couldn't come without it—my face. It was never sacred before."

He ushered us into the room drinking tea, laughing and chatting as though we had been friends always.

June stood me at a half open door. He wanted to get just the expression of the eyes, he said. Then he began to paint. He forgot me, forgot June. I must have stood there an hour. Sometimes his hands moved with swift, short strokes—sometimes his strange eyes focused on mine as though he would lift the face from their measure and transfer them to the canvas.

He put down the brush and I looked at the canvas. It gave me a shock of joy to see my face there.

We went several times after that. Ma was so interested I longed to bring her, to let her see the inside of a studio—to let her speak to a real artist. I told Bruce about it. It amused him.

On Saturday afternoon Pat took time off to see the accessory company—then he called for us and we all crowded into the roadster. He was going to drive us to Bruce's studio.

"Wear it, ma. Maybe he'll paint your picture."

"Not an old woman like me, Mary."

But I knew she hoped he would.

Bruce gave her tea. He waited on her, petted her as though she were a child. She enjoyed it. I was wishing, praying he would take a notion to sketch her. I knew she was just longing for it.

"Here's a paintable face!" I said at last, unwilling to see her disappointed.

"Oh, Mary," ma blushed.

Bruce laughed and understood. He took a piece of charcoal and as she sat there with the sweet smile on her face, the old-fashioned brooch at her neck, he sketched her. She was overcome when she saw her image.

Pat took her home. We were going to dinner together. He was to come back for me.

As soon as they were gone Bruce took me for the painting. He had me hold my arms out, palms up as though I was waiting for something to be given me.

"You have the most beautiful arms I have ever seen," he said suddenly. I was so startled I let them drop. I had always thought them thick—they were so long. He stepped over, took my hands and put them back in the folds. He had been a moment, then he pressed down and pressed a kiss in the hollow of the right hand.

It may have been a moment later—maybe longer—when Pat came in. He sat down and laughed with Bruce.

It is when we were at dinner he looked at me with the searching, anxious glance I had come to hate and asked me when the picture would be finished.

"I don't know—he doesn't say." "It's a shabby adventure, Pat. What do you want with it?"

What did I, I wonder?

"A shabby adventure."

The taunt stuck in my mind. Pat didn't look at me when he said it. Had he seen Allan Bruce stoop and kiss my hand? Why did he use that word? Did he mean that I was shabby? I wanted to know. I sat opposite him, white, trembly. Did he think I let all men kiss me? The fear made me feel sheep yet resentful.

"You've never been shabby, Pat! It's all I've ever been able to afford!"

"Darling!" He leaned forward, gripping my hand, his face tense. "Don't say a thing like that. You know it isn't true."

I felt like crying.

Whenever he thought I wasn't looking, I could feel his ardent eyes searching my face as though he doubted me. I wanted to say, "Stop looking at me. I haven't committed the seven deadly sins." I don't know what held my tongue.

Then in the baffling way he had, he changed the subject. We said nothing to each other, but I felt the shadow of a misunderstanding between us. All Allan Bruce's attentions—a thousand portraits weren't worth it. I would forbid them all to know me. Pat hadn't seen that kiss—didn't believe me shabby at heart.

I began to wish I had never gone to Allan Bruce's, to wonder why I had been so excited about the picture. I couldn't feel angry with Bruce. He meant nothing by that hurried kiss.

Bruce fascinated me, yet it was not himself alone, but the romance of his life, of his setting, of his art. To me, sitting for my portrait was a glowing adventure.

Now the joy had gone from it I felt a revolt from the whole experience. I didn't want to go to the studio any more. I would say I was too busy. I would shove it all away from me. I would make excuses to Allan Bruce.

I might have spared my worry in the next weeks I had no time for portraits. The lull at the office was over. Dawson was the dynamo again. He worked from early morning till 8, 9, even 5 o'clock. He kept me mercilessly busy.

He came in one day in a rollicking humor, humming in his rich, throaty baritone.

"Why me, girlie? By golly, I've starved! Look at me, Mary, thin as a monk, ain't I? But I feel jaunty as hell. Let them sit back and watch their Uncle Dudley now! I've got them all in tow! You've never seen me fall yet, have you, Mary? Ring up that fathead Sullivan."

As soon as I had the number he grabbed the receiver from me.

"Hello! Ma Sullivan? Can you come in late this afternoon?

"Tomorrow, then?

You can't make it? Well, I have a wonderful proposition. I'll drop you a line."

He pushed the telephone from him.

"Here, take this!" he said suddenly, getting up and firing sentences hot speed at me. It was a letter to Pat.

"Dear Mr. Sullivan:

"I will not mince words with you. I am sending this letter because I believe you are far too shrewd to turn down the proposition I have to make despite your unwillingness to discuss the marketing of your patent further with me.

"I have spent the best part of three weeks in persistent efforts to interest big business men in your combination carburetor. As I have pacific already discovered, capital is not eager to invest in inventions of any description.

WHEN LOVE IS BLIND

—By Beatrice Fairfax—

"SWEETHEARTS must know each other at home as well as on holiday," says the Dean of Manchester, England. "Young people who become entangled in amorous attachments while on holiday should not allow the engagements to continue until they have seen each other at home."

I wish there were some way of making all our young vacationists realize this.

Because a man is a charming companion and his attentions make a visit at a Summer resort delightful doesn't mean that he is the right companion for a lifetime.

A man and a girl ought to know something more about each other than the Summer holiday reveals before settling down to the work-day business of spending a lifetime together. The glamour of moonlight rides and sunlight sails and swims is great.

All the sports of vacation time have a gay spirit, a freedom from routine, and a lack of restraint which is bound to exert as part in the natural physical attraction between two young folks who are looking for romance. But homemaking and raising a family aren't purely romantic. They have an almost practical side.

A distinguished London surgeon commends in this fashion:

"It has been my observation that couples who saw most of each other before marriage seem to manage their marital relations most successfully.

"Temper and physical attraction are the two outstanding factors in married life, and in the heads affair is the physical attraction that is the impelling factor to matrimony. This factor, however, does not make for happiness half so much as the tempers of the parties concerned."

Now temper hasn't much cause for outbursts on the holiday. The chance from the routine of the city and its work is beneficial to nerves. The holiday spirit is easy going and pleasure-seeking. And when two people are met in an environment new to each, each is under influences foreign to his or her usual.

There is no rush and flurry of work, there is no obligation to get things done, there is no need of adjustment to the demands of an office or a store or even of a home. And so the holiday makers see each other as they are two weeks out of a year—not as they are fifty weeks out of fifty-two.

Apart from the fact that folks who meet casually on the vacation basis see each other under easy and easy-making conditions, they know nothing of each other's backgrounds. And if they plunge into marriage they have ahead a difficult adjustment not only to an unknown personality but to an unrevealed world.

A Remarkable Deduction

The secretary of an Anti-Tobacco League said in a recent address: "Carefully compiled statistics show us that for every cigar a man smokes he shortens his life three days. A physician prominent in local circles rose with the question: "Are those statistics quite accurate?" "Quite, sir," replied the secretary. "Why?" "Because," replied the M. D. caustically, "if they are, I've been dead over two hundred years."

Unexpected

Young Hopeful had been expelled from school, and his father was surprised to see him.

"What are you doing here, my boy? A holiday?"

"Yes, a holiday," said the boy. "A long one?"

"Yes, father. In fact, I don't think I'll go back any more."

"Don't say that, my son," said his father. "Why, that school has turned out some of the most famous in the country."

"Yes, I know," replied Young Hopeful. "It turned me out."

Not Encouraging

"Will ye stay to tea?" asked Mrs. Hogan, of the caller who thank you," was the answer, "I must be home to look after Barney." "Ah, sure, ye mustn't neglect him," said Mrs. Hogan, reproachfully. "I think I will stay, though I hear the kettle singing," was the unexpected reply. "Oh, don't take notice of that!" said Mrs. Hogan, scornfully. "It sings for hours before it boils!"

NERVOUS AND HALF-SICK WOMEN

These Letters Recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will Interest You

For Your Own Good Please Read Them

Youngstown, Ohio.—"Last fall I began to feel mean and my back hurt me and I could hardly do my little bit of housework. I was played out when I would just sweep one room and would have to rest. I would have to put a cushion behind me when I would sit down and a slight I could not sleep unless I had something under my back. I had awful cramps every month and was just near all in. Finally my husband said to me one day, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine?' and I said, 'I am willing to take anything if I could get well again.' So I took one bottle and a second one and felt better and the neighbors asked me what I was doing and said, 'Surely it must be doing you good all right.' I have just finished my eighth bottle and I cannot express to you how I feel, the way I would like to. If you can use this letter you are welcome to it and if any woman does not believe what I have written to be true, she can write to me and I will describe my condition to her as I have to you."—Mrs. ELMER HEARLEY, 141 S. Jackson St., Youngstown, Ohio.

"I was very nervous and run-down," writes Mrs. L. B. Wyse of 706 Louisa St., New Orleans, La. "I would often sit down and cry, and was always blue and had no ambition. I was this way for over a year and had allowed myself to get into quite a serious condition. One day I saw your advertisement in the daily paper and began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once. I have improved ever since taking the third bottle and I find it is the best medicine I have ever taken."

Benefited by First Bottle

"I was completely run down and not able to do my housework. I just dragged myself around and did not have energy to get up when once I sat down. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in our paper The Indiana Daily Times, and learned all about it. I received results from the very first bottle and now I am doing all my own work even washing and ironing, and I never felt better in my life. I tell all my friends it is due to you."—Mrs. ELIZABETH REINBOLD, 403 N. Pine St., Indianapolis, Indiana.

You should pay heed to the experiences of these women. They know how they felt before taking the Vegetable Compound, and afterwards, too. Their words are true.

"If we very nervous and run-down," writes Mrs. L. B. Wyse of 706 Louisa St., New Orleans, La.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND GOSSIP

JUDGE KNOX of the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of New York has just handed down a decision that is of vital importance to the motion picture industry.

International Film Company, Inc., and Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, through their solicitor, Nathan Burkan, brought suit against Affiliated Distributors, Inc., Edwin Carewe Picture Corporation, Edwin Carewe, Bernard P. Fineman, Charles C. Burr, Gus S. Schlesinger, Abraham Warner and Harry Warner and Raymond L. Schrock, defendants collectively, alleging that the latter's picture entitled "I Am the Law" was an infringement upon James Oliver Curwood's story, "The Valley of Silent Men," recently released by Cosmopolitan Productions.

The decision restrains the defendants from further showing and distribution of the picture "I Am the Law," until there has been eliminated therefrom a series of events, incidents and situations which Judge Knox has decided to be an infringement of the plaintiff's copyright of the Curwood story and picture.

Judge Knox, in his decision, reviews the facts of the case at length and comes from the decided cases which have established a precedent in litigations of this nature. In his summary of evidence Judge Knox says: "From the I am forced to the conclusion that there was an effort and design, notwithstanding denials upon the part of certain defendants —that none of them had prior to this litigation read Curwood's story—to reap a profit or gain out of the material in which others had an exclusive right."

A VOICELESS QUARTET

THE celebrated quartet in "Quincy Adams Sawyer" is represented in the Metro film by four comedians, Elmo Lincoln, Hank Mann, Billy Franey and Victor Fetel.

As they are expected to sing, in order to observe facial contortions, they have an original composition called "Hark and Hear the Eagle Scream," which they use.

The scream does not record sounds but the other actors on the lot are threatening to call the police.

BEBE DANIELS

BEBE Daniels is part Spanish, part Scotch. She was born in Dallas, Texas, and has been on the stage since she was six. Entered motion pictures in 1913. Best known for her delineation of good little bad girl roles. She scored with Jack Holt in "North of the Rio Grande," and has won many friends. She has an excellent role in "Nice People."

VIOLA "WEIL" IS TIMES

TO have stood before an altar in different places, to have a ring placed upon the third finger of her left hand as she repeated the highly important words "I do," and still remain husbandless, is the experience Viola Dana has enjoyed as a result of her motion picture career.

Miss Dana was married for the fifteenth time before the camera several days ago during the filming of "Mrs. Madness," her new Metro starring picture which Harry Beaumont is directing.

On this occasion the elaborate interior of a church was constructed on one of the Metro studio stages which took up every available foot in the enclosure.

TOURNEUR'S SON ASSISTS.

JACK TOURNEUR, seventeen-year-old son of Maurice Tourneur, who has just finished photography on "The Christian" for Goldwyn, helped his father as secretary in his production of the Hall Caine story. Jack was born in France, is being educated in this country. His present work is being done between school terms. The boy says he does not intend to make pictures his life work, although his father has achieved a notable success in the field.

Rush Hughes, son of Rupert Hughes, has also been spending his Summer vacation acting in "Gimme," which his father and mother wrote.

FASHION ART LEAGUE DETHRONES FLAPPER

Chicago, Sept. 13.—And still the fashion experts put that bobbed hair, covered ears and short skirts are as passe as the bodo. This time it is the Fashion Art League of America.

This Fall and Winter, it announces in convention here, will see the return of the natural figures, gracefully draped in long skirts, hair parted high on the head and ears showing.

So Art has spoken: the flapper is doomed.

REAL ESTATE Happenings

Contractors and builders, as well as individual property owners, are evincing much interest in the salvage sale of the Hingham Naval Camp, which is being disposed of under the direction of L. Grossman & Sons of Quincy.

This camp, which was one of the most complete on the Atlantic Coast, is to be completely dismantled. In the prodigal way that characterized expenditures for camps during the war, the construction and equipment was of a quality that would suffice for a permanent camp. Now this material, including buildings, is being sold to Massachusetts residents all the way from Lowell to Provincetown. Despite the rain Tuesday afternoon a crowd was in attendance at the grounds. Many of the smaller buildings have been sold to persons who intend using them for Summer camps. A few still remain. The larger buildings that were used for mess halls, moving pictures hall, Y. M. C. A., commissary, are yet to be sold. One of the buildings is 160 feet long by 60 feet wide without a post to obstruct the floor space. Thousands of radiators, miles of pipe, boilers and refrigerating plants, steam jacketed kettles, food choppers, etc., are arranged in groups, destined to be retired from war duty to civilian service in New England homes and factories just as the thousands of blue jackets who were quartered there have returned to civil life.

INTEREST IN LAND AUCTION.

The sale of house lots on Parker Hill by John C. Kiley & Co. has aroused much interest, judging by the attendance and sales made. Thirty lots have been disposed of, some of the buyers taking double lots. It is reported that some lots were resold immediately after the sale at a profit to the original purchaser.

Although the bidders were numerous and the bidding brisk, the prices realized were disappointing. The number of lots sold, however, showed that there exists a real demand for house lots at moderate prices. The balance of the lots will be sold during the week, and the remainder, if any, next Saturday afternoon.

COTTAGE HOUSE IN MALDEN

Mrs. Ellen Tehan has sold to Carlo and Amello Colendo the property at 48 Ash street, Malden, consisting of a cottage house of seven rooms and 7,500 square feet of land. The tax value is $2,400. J. A. Buckley & Son negotiated the transaction.

MAN AND WIFE ON BERGEN GRAND JURY

New York, Sept. 13.—John H. Bradshaw and wife, Laura H. Bradshaw, of Grantwood, N. J., are serving as members of the September Bergen County Grand Jury. This is said to be the first time in the history of the State of New Jersey that a man and wife have served on the same jury. Three years ago Mrs. Bradshaw was a Democratic candidate for Assembly in Bergen County.

137,000 PUPILS FILL BOSTON SCHOOLS

More than 137,000 pupils in Boston's public schools ended their long summer vacations and returned to their studies today.

Despite the fact that the schoolhouse commissioners, headed by Thomas P. Glynn, accomplished a tremendous amount of preparatory work during the Summer and spent more than $650,000 in putting the various buildings into shape, the schoolrooms in many cases were slightly crowded, the growth in the school population having been faster than efforts to meet it.

Pupils in the Latin School moved into their new building on Louis Pasteur avenue. This building, which accommodates 1,440 pupils, is one of the finest of its kind in the city, and was erected at a cost of $1,127,000.

The old Latin School building, on Warren street, is being remodelled for an addition to the English High School. The latter school will have a capacity of 2,620 boys when the addition is completed, but will still be unable to accommodate all applicants.

Roxbury Child Injured

Robert Hiers, 4 years old, of No 82 Brookford street, Roxbury, was struck by an auto in front of Wentworth School, Roxbury, and is at City Hospital with contusions of the scalp.

Cox Vindicated

We congratulate Governor Cox upon his splendid vindication at the hands of his Republican party associates. He has come through the fight, one of the most vigorous the party has ever known, a very much bigger man than when he entered.

He has dispelled forever the belief that he is undersized in character and mentality. After the Faneuil Hall reply to Mr. Hurlburt he left few in doubt of his courage and capacity. He was sorely tried by most unfair criticism from men who ought not to have made it. It was pardonable, perhaps, in Mr. Allen under the heat of a candidacy to exaggerate and to be a little unfair. But, it was not pardonable in some of the others.

While the result is humiliating, perhaps, to Mr. Allen, it does not indicate that the ordinary Republicans have failed to appreciate some of his work as Attorney General. As we pointed out in this column a month ago, it is one thing to ask for a vote of approval which means that and nothing more, but it is quite another thing to ask for a vote of approval which necessarily means a repudiation and humiliation of another Republican in office who is doing his duty also. We said that this was Governor Cox's impregnable position and so it has appeared today.

The success of John F. Fitzgerald in the Democratic primary will present to Governor Cox a foeman worthy of his steel. Mr. Fitzgerald has come through this campaign without a scratch. He conducted his candidacy with dignity and wounded none of his opponents. He will have the ill will of none and will have a united party behind him. This is a progressive year, a democratic year, when the candidates and the platform are democratic. It will be as interesting a campaign as were the primaries.

Mr. Fitzgerald is certainly a Democrat with a large and a small D and his program of policies if adopted in the Democratic State convention will be in keeping with the spirit of the hour.

Pelletier's Victory

The triumph of Mr. Pelletier in the great city of Boston and Suffolk County, although opposed by one of the best young men who ever offered himself for office in this State, ought to give the Supreme Court and the other courts of this State and the courts of the country, something to consider very seriously. They can contemplate the mess which their gourmandising of power, out of an ancient and irrelevant statute, to control an elective office—an office which has been made elective by the Constitution itself—has made in Boston.

No man ought to be deprived of substantial rights by the courts until the facts upon which the deprivation must rest have been ascertained and established by jury. We believe that the Supreme Court performance in the Tufts and Pelletier cases was most unwise.

At the incoming of the next Legislature the American will propose either a statute or a constitutional amendment calculated to confirm the people in the control of the officers the Constitution imposes on them the duty and right of selecting; and the protection of their substantial rights by a trial by jury. We shall try to accomplish this reform both for the democratic rights of the people and the true dignity and power of the courts.

Dirtiness in Politics

For Whatever There May Be of It Mixed in, the Public Service Corporations Are to Blame

Lieutenant-Governor Fuller tells the people that when he reached the point in his business affairs where he could afford a little leisure, he decided not to sit down in his easy chair on his veranda and look at politics from afar, considering it too dirty to mix in. He tells us that he decided to mix in it and to be clean in it.

This idea that politics is dirtier than business is the worst kind of bunk in the world. It is an idea created to flatter the kind of a business man that would accept such flattery. It is the kind of "holier than thou" attitude of mind on the part of a good many people who have no inclination to go into politics, and it is a "sour grapes" attitude toward a good many who would like to go into politics, but do not know how.

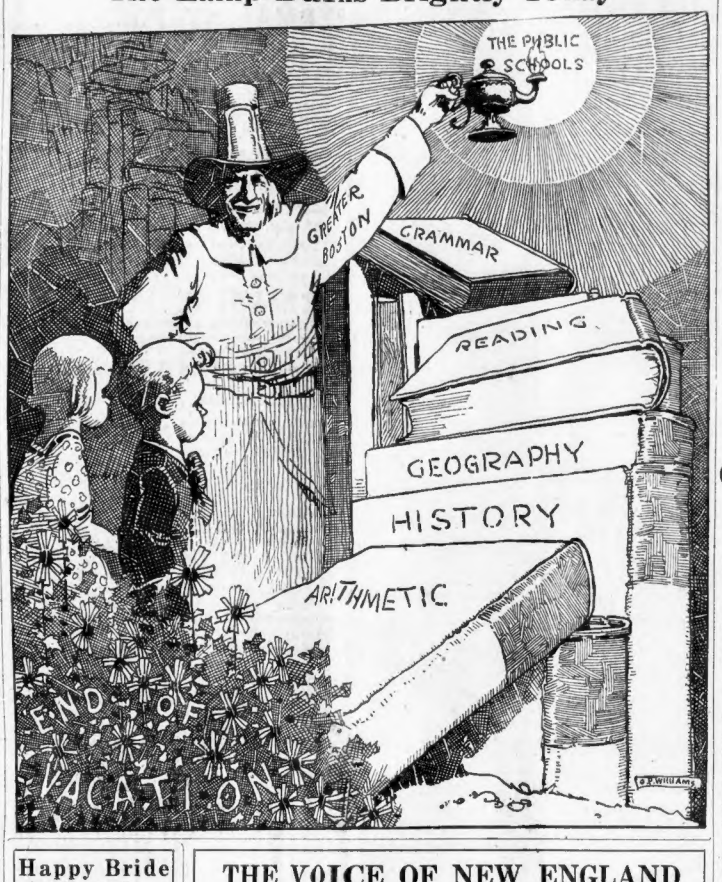
But the chief source of the propaganda that politics is rotten, as well as the chief cause of whatever rottenness there is in politics, is found in the public service corporations. These great creatures of the State, created to perform a public function and unfortunately allowed to be operated by private individuals for private profit, have an interest in making the public believe that politics is rotten, inherently, naturally and unavoidably rotten. They have a two-fold interest in making the public believe it.

First they want to conceal from the public the fact that they themselves contribute three-fourths of the rottenness to public life by the corruption which they cause in their attempt to control the political life of the community, so that they may have a free hand to extort by giving bad service at high prices. Then again they want to keep the people from taking the obvious course in order to escape from the bad service and extortionate charges which these public service corporations, like our railroads, our street railways and our gas and electric lightning companies, impose upon us. If they can keep you believing that politics is hopelessly rotten, they make you hesitate to attempt to supply yourself through government agencies with transportation and heat and light. They make you hesitate about public ownership and operation.

Consider the vicious circle of these public service corporations. First they create most of the rottenness in politics and then they undertake to make you submit to their own rottenness by telling you that you would be jumping from the frying pan into the fire if you turned them out and put the government in their place.

Mr. Fuller is right.

The Lamp Burns Brightly Today



Happy Bride in Bungalow

By Winifred Black

HOW happy she is—the little young wife.

She lives in a tiny little bungalow with only four rooms—but there's a porch—oh, a beautiful porch!—and she and Mr. Newlywed have their breakfast on the porch, and their supper there at night, and the wild cucumber vine foams up over the lattice, like the crest of a green wave flecked with delicate white, and the morning glories are beginning to peep through the lattice, too—blue ones and white ones and soft rose-color ones, all holding up their little cups as if they never could get enough dew to drink.

The tall yellow primroses—the kind that blossom only after the sun has gone down—fairly crowd around the little porch, as if they loved it and the people who spend so many happy hours on it. And in the evening when the sun has sunk into the ocean, and the evening star sparkles in the friendly sky——

"Pop! say the evening primroses, and they sound exactly as if some one was kissing some one, and all the air is full of sweet, mysterious fragrance.

And the mignonette and the roses, and the sweet alyssum! They were planted only this Spring, but dear me, they grow as if they were magic flowers.

And all along the fence the pink geraniums flaunt their gay banners and lean over and seem to try to listen to what people say about the little bungalow as they go by.

And in the back garden there is a goat. Betsy Trotwood by name—quite a human creature is Betsy, with a waggish look in her eye and an unexpected sense of humor.

Honest Lydesdale, the drake, oh, he's a great character! It is he who leads the charge of the Light Brigade when the little wife steps to the door of the porch and beats an entrancing tattoo on the dishpan with a wooden spoon.

Alyce, for short—the gray kitten—is the real pet of the house—she and Bobby Burns, the wire-haired Scotch terrier.

The husband is away all day and there are not many neighbors near the new little bungalow—but lonely? Why, the idea!

There's the sweeping to do, and the dusting and the little sewing, and the ducks and chickens and geese must be fed, and there's the new book from the library to read, and at half-past four who's so busy and so earnest as little Mrs. Newlywed, in her blue bungalow apron and her funny little shoes tied with blue ribbons?

There's a new recipe to try—how will it turn out?

There's a new story to tell Mr. Newlywed when he comes home, somethings about the drake and his goings-on when one of the ducks did not answer when he called to her in a lordly voice.

And in the evening after dinner, there is the ride in the cheap little car, and the sound of the waves breaking on the beach, and the smell of yellow primroses when they turn into the pale night—oh, little Mrs. Newlywed is so sorry for every one who is not as happy as she!

And the other day some friends who used to know her when she lived in a big house in a big city before she was married, came to see her, and they were shocked and horrified, and they were, oh, so tragic about it!

And little Mrs. Newlywed did not know what on earth they meant. But when they had gone in their smart car and had taken their smart frocks and their empty chatter and their high-pitched, silly voices away with them, she thought it all out and then she laughed and laughed—for it came upon her suddenly that while she was being sorry for her rich cousin, who lives at home in a great, empty, lonely house, and cannot call her soul her own, the rich cousin was being very sorry for her, because she lived in a bungalow and had to do her own cooking.

Little Mrs. Newlywed is learning very fast—that life is a strange and puzzling world, and nothing made her begin to learn it any faster than the visit she had the other day from the restless, dissatisfied, cold-blooded, scheming people who went to the little bungalow to see her and who couldn't help showing her how very sorry they were for her—in all her simple happiness.

I'm glad she had sense enough to laugh.

THE VOICE OF NEW ENGLAND

No Attention Paid to Anonymous Communications

Early Settlers

Editor Boston American:

It is a deplorable fact that this country must count among its citizens (?) such narrow-minded, bigoted and ignorant persons as the writer of that sarcastic letter in today's American, signed Samuel L. Hart. I would like to know if Mr. Hart studied the "early settlement map" with bandaged eyes? Or, possibly, he was looking at the map of Australia, thinking he was in New England.

Any fair-minded American will acknowledge the fact that there are Catholic names in abundance to be found on any "early settlement map." CANADIAN.

Providence.

Christianity

Editor Boston American:

The attitude of the Bay State toward the Jews in their recent hotel clean-ups is a good example of Puritanical blue blood Christianity. If it was not for the Jews in over half of the cities in Massachusetts, yes, the world, we would all be living in the stone age.

The Christians got all they know about religion from the Jews and they could learn a lot more from the Jews if they would come down out of that spiritual atmosphere and stay on earth a little while.

IRVING DANIELS.

Unskilled Labor

Editor Boston American:

Unskilled labor in factories, etc., should get six dollars per day instead of three, which they now get, and they should fight and strike to get it. No wonder there is not enough work when men can be hired for three dollars per day.

There are too many meek people in this country; they are not so good as those who are blunt and useful; meek people can't be a help to others. This country wants to get radical. Conservatives burden the poor.

R. BEATTY.

As Washington Did

Editor Boston American:

We read in the pro-British press of De Valera's death, sickness, suggestion of his losing his mind, etc. It is equal to the innumerable deaths and woundings of Lenin. But De Valera is not dead, and will live to see an Irish republic or die fighting for the same.

Just as Washington would have done, as American history shows, when asked to compromise his goal, by the English, an American republic. How thankful we do feel for Washington's perseverance and manly holding-out qualities; so also will the Irish people thank De Valera in the near future.

STEPHEN O'HARA.

Free State

Editor Boston American:

Mr. McNamara's article (Fighting for England) constituted a page-full. There is only one side to an argument (the right side). Nations as well as individuals have that undeniable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness which is God given. The Free State in Ireland is only the work of Satan under the guise of a reform. Those brought in under this banner are consciously or unconsciously traitors to the cause of those who have gone, the apostles of freedom. The Irish cannot govern themselves as a nation while the big stick of British imperialism has been a menace to them for centuries back. In this country and others the Irish have proven themselves leaders of men in politics and in the higher education.

"By What Right"

Editor Boston American:

By what right do the coal operators assume ownership? When did they buy them, and how much did they pay for them? What right have a few men to withhold any necessity of life from the public? Why does not the government take the mines? Why should the government pay anything for them; they are God's provision for the people.

What right has a railroad company to stop me from running a jitney for passengers? Don't the streets belong to the people?

Do you know of any system run any better than our water system?

How much would it cost to send a letter to California and when would it be delivered? High bluff, cost of paper, strikes, etc.; my government is good enough to take care of my letters.

I wish your paper would get this trolley line situation before the voters, that is, as to whether or not the State should take them over. I am sure the answer would be a tremendous "yes."

SEEN AND HEARD

NEW Bostonians realize that within an hour's ride of the Hub is located a peach orchard containing 19,000 trees. The orchard is located at Bolton and is visited daily by many motorists who believe in the "from producer to consumer" slogan.

The dedication of the new home of the Somerville Lodge of Elks on Central street, that city, brings to light the historical information that the house was at one time occupied by MARY E. TYLER, who as a little girl was the central figure in the verse "Mary Had a Little Lamb." It was Mrs. Tyler who owned the lamb that followed her to school.

CHIEF OF POLICE R. F. CHALK of York Beach, Me., who came into the limelight by arresting numerous holiday motorists for violation of the vehicular laws, although he is nearly 100 miles from Boston by highway routes, has to deal with more autoists from the Bay State than from any other. A count at one York vantage point the other day revealed that of 137 passing autos eighty bore Massachusetts registration numbers.

EX-GOVERNOR SAMUEL W. McCALL was hustled down School street past City Hall the other day, deep in thought, with head down and hands characteristically in his pockets. More than a dozen people, nearly everyone on the street at the time, turned to look at the tall figure of the Bay State's former chief executive, demonstrating that, although less in the public eye, he is still very widely recognized.

SHERIFF JOHN R. FAIRBAIRN of Middlesex County has returned from a short vacation spent at the Shattuck Inn, Jaffrey, N. H. The genial sheriff went out driving one day in an old-fashioned carry-all, and a bunch of New York girls who were hiking along the road stopped to see the rig go by. "Oh, look at CHAUNCEY DEPEW," said the fair ones.

REV. ARTHUR S. BURROWS has resigned the pastorate of Bethany Baptist Church, Roxbury, after ten years' service. He is the only clergymen in Boston who has set the type of the books that he has written during these years.

"BILL" DONOVAN, commercial agent of the Western Union, who had charge of the wires at Brookline in the amateur golf championships, says his staff handled 1,187,344 words of press matter during the journey. This breaks the record for any sporting event except the world's baseball series and "BILL" is quite elated. Fifteen thousand words were cabled to England.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON WHY SHIPS FLOAT

By Garrett P. Serviss.

"My question sounds so foolish that I am almost afraid to ask you to waste your time by answering it. But I have asked all my acquaintances without any avail, and do not know where to look it up, so I must ask you. What I wish to know is: Why does a heavy steamship float on the water? What is there about it that makes it float when a small iron chest will sink to the bottom?"

YOUR question is not at all foolish, as the failure of your acquaintances to answer it shows. Of course a question may be so really foolish that an answer is impossible; but this is not one of that kind, and those who failed to answer it did so merely through ignorance of some of the primary facts and principles of physics, which I think every person who can read ought to deem as well worth knowing as the name and plot of the latest novel.

The thing about the steamship that makes it float is its hollow, air-filled interior. If a hole is knocked in its bottom so that the water can enter and fill its inner compartments and hollow places, down it will go, not stopping until it rests on the bottom of the lake or sea. Many persons suppose that a sunken ship may remain suspended part way down, but they are mistaken; if the vessel is full of water it will go to the very bottom.

People are perpetually getting confused over this subject of "buoyancy." Many do not know that the principles are the same whether applied to a ship or to a balloon. This is covered by the "law of Archimedes," which the great Syracusan philosopher, who was killed by a Roman soldier while working on a problem in geometry, first put in this form:

"A body when placed in a liquid loses weight equal to the weight of the liquid displaced by it." It was this principle that enabled Archimedes to detect the fraud that a Syracusan jeweler had worked off upon King Hiero by mixing a large quantity of silver in the gold crown that he made for the King.

Many centuries after Archimedes it was found that his law applies to gases, like the atmosphere, and in this case it is usually stated as follows: "A body when immersed in a gas is buoyed up by a force equal to the weight of the gas displaced by it."

A little thought will show you that the two statements of the law are practically identical. If the weight of the immersed body is diminished by an amount equal to the weight of the same bulk of gas or of water which it displaces then the effect is the same as an upward pressure of that amount on the body.

Now, take your heavy steamship and consider how it is constructed, and how its great weight is distributed. In the first place, it is hollow, and the space occupied by the hollow interior is a great many times larger than that occupied by the relatively thin sides and bottom.

Consequently, the weight is distributed over a comparatively great area of water, and, the ship being ballasted in such a way as to keep the closed bottom downward, the water cannot enter the interior space. The upward pressure, or buoyant effect, of the water on the ship is equal to the weight of the amount of water that the ship displaces.

And this will be greater than the downward pressure or weight of the ship as long as the latter is less than would be the weight of a quantity of water equal in bulk to the whole ship, including the interior.

Pretty Soon Girls Will Have to Check Their Vanity Cases When They Go Out in Evening

GIRLS' vanity cases are getting larger all the time and when they go down town now-a-days they can take pretty near everything with them except the piano.

It won't be long before they'll be taking a steamer trunk with them when they go out in the evening.

They used to be able to carry their vanity cases, but pretty soon they'll have to check them.

Can you imagine a dame having to get an expressman to take her vanity box to the theatre for her?

She'd have to go into the baggage room every time she wanted to powder her nose.

Why shouldn't we be able to check them right through to the opera house? We can check baggage on every other kind of a ticket.

When you see a woman with one of these cases you don't know whether she's going away, coming home or just going out for the afternoon.

Most of them have extra large mirrors in them and as soon as they install a couple of drawers the dames will be carrying a regular chiffonier.

Some of them are as big as a modern apartment.

All they lack is a kitchenette and plumbing.

A cop saw a vanity box standing on the street corner and looked around for the dame who owned it. The chances are she was inside.

They're great in case of thunderstorms. All you have to do is to open it up and jump in.

One of these cases had a big bay window in the front, but one woman wouldn't buy it because she didn't like the view.

If the manufacturers make them a little larger we'll be able to use them as a garage for the Ford.

If you can't get them in the Ford you can get the Ford in them.

They make them in all shapes so that every woman can be satisfied.

And judging from some of the shapes you see on the street a lot of dames are easily pleased.

One guy went in to buy a vanity. He told the saleslady he wanted it for his girl. She said, "What shape?" The guy said, "A perfect thirty-six."

GUTHRIE GETS CHECK TO AID WAR VET

Colonel Percy A. Guthrie, who brought suit against the American Red Cross in behalf of William Breen Kane, disabled Canadian veteran, announced today he had received a check to be used toward alleviating the condition of the former soldier and his mother, Mrs. Mary Breen Kane of No. 3 Waterford street, South End.

The donor expressed sympathy for Kane, who, it is charged, is unable to collect his pension money because of Red Cross interference. Another woman, who claims to have suffered an almost identical infustice, has called on Colonel Guthrie for aid as a result of reading the Kane story.

MISS JULIA SANDERSON

She denies having been served with divorce papers by her husband, Lieutenant Barnette, but admits she has been separated from him for four years.

Julia Sanderson deplores the artfulness of an author who wished upon her a sentimental role in which Frank Crumit is compelled to make love to her.

Both are engaged in "Tangerine," now playing in Boston.

The report came that Julia had been served with a summons in an action of divorce started by her husband (her second one, the first being the famous pockey, Ted Sloan) while she was coming off the stage after a burning love scene with Mr. Crumit.

"No such thing," said Miss Julia Sanderson today.

Her husband is Lieutenant Bradford Barnette, U. S. A.

"It is true that Bradford and I have separated," said Miss Sanderson today. "We've lived apart for four years. But it's preposterous to think that he would sue me for divorce without giving me notice of it.

"You see, when we were married, realizing the perils and shifting sands of matrimony, we mutually agreed that if we found it desirable at any time to do so, we would separate. We further agreed that whenever either of us wanted to get a divorce, in order to marry anybody else, or for any other reason, we would give due notice one to the other, and then help each other to get a divorce. A most friendly pact, and I know that Bradford will live up to it.

"But there's no necessity for it right now, as far as I'm concerned. Mr. Crumit makes love to me only on the stage. I wish to say, in passing, that he does it superlatively well. There are few actors who can make love so well or so convincingly as Frank Crumit.

ONLY IN THE PLAY.

"It happens that the author of the piece made Frank fall quite desperately in love with me. But it's only in the script.

"It's Frank's realistic way of making stage love that brought up the rumors. The report that I was served with divorce papers was instigated by a desire to injure me professionally.

"I owe Mr. Crumit an apology for being the innocent cause of bringing him embarrassment. I hope he will forgive me."

MYSTERY OF CHECKS SOLVED

$3,125 Fee Allen Says Innes Got in Auto Theft Cases Paid by Corcoran

Mystery surrounding the two checks totalling $3,125 which Attorney-General J. Weston Allen declared on the stump had been paid to the law firm of Charles H. Innes, Republican boss, by William J. Corcoran, alleged chief of the Boston blackmail ring, was solved today.

The checks constituted part of attorney's fees paid by Perry, Barry and Collamore, alleged leaders in an auto theft ring.

Attorney-General Allen announced in a campaign speech that he had submitted evidence, including these checks, to the grievance committee of the Boston Bar Association for investigation, seeking disbarment of Innes.

The other lawyers who received part of the Perry, Barry, Collamore fee were Frank A. McDermott of Cambridge and Corcoran, who formerly served as district attorney for Middlesex County. Corcoran, now a resident of New York, is under indictment in the blackmail cases.

WILL PROVE CHARGES.

Attorney-General Allen, at his Mechanics Building rally, did not give the history of the checks. He called on Governor Cox, his opponent, to make public why these checks were paid to "his friend and intimate," Charles H. Innes, by Corcoran.

This cast a cloak of mystery about the checks which the Boston American today dispels.

The outcome of the primaries in no way changes the acute situation developed by the checks and other evidence which the Attorney-General claims to possess.

Attorney-General Allen brought out in the Tufts and Pelletier trials that Attorney Innes had acted as counsel in the cash settlement made by the motion picture producers to hush the Mishawum Manor case in which the gay hostess of the manor, Brownie Kennedy, figured conspicuously.

Attorney-General Allen declared that he would prove his charges against Attorney Innes by means of Corcoran's confession, which caused the collapse of the Pelletier trial just as Pelletier was about to start offering a defence.

ASKED COX ABOUT CHECKS.

Said Attorney-General Allen in his final campaign speech:

"Corcoran turned over to me two checks. One was payable to 'cash' for $1,625, dated October 24, 1918, and deposited to the account of Innes and Turle. I also have the check of Mr. Corcoran on the Beacon Trust Company, dated December 7, 1918, payable to the order of C. H. Innes, for $1,500 and indorsed for deposit to the account of C. H. Innes.

"I asked my opponent (Governor Cox) to find out for what purpose these checks were paid by Mr. Corcoran to Mr. Innes during the time when he was representing these automobile thieves and then determine whether or not I am justified in opposing Mr. Innes and in criticising any man who will appear in support of Mr. Innes and be his intimate."

RICH GIRL WON BY SENATOR

Miss Sewall of Maine to Be Bride of Edge of New Jersey

Bath, Me., Sept. 13.—The engagement of their daughter, Camilla Loyall Ashe, to Senator Walter Evans Edge of New Jersey was formally announced today by Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Sewall of this city. The wedding will take place at the Sewall home in February.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Departure from Washington today of Senator Edge of New Jersey to spend several days at the home in Bath, Me., of Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Sewall, led to an announcement of the engagement of the Senator and Miss Camilla Sewall, daughter of Mr. Edge's hosts during his Maine visit.

Senator Edge refused to discuss the reports, but his friends at the Senate discussed them with no apparent show of surprise. The Senator was married in 1907 to Miss Lady Lee Phillips of Memphis, Tenn., who died in 1916.

Miss Sewall is a granddaughter of the late Arthur Sewall, who was a candidate for Vice-President in 1896 on the ticket with William J. Bryan.

Miss Sewall is widely known in New York society, as well as in Washington and Boston.

Almost twenty-one, she made her debut in Boston two years ago, after attending the Windsor School in Brookline, Mass., and studying in Paris and at the Dominican convent in Nemours, Belgium. She met the Senator in Washington, where her father had a house last Winter.

WOMAN NAMED TO ACCIDENT BOARD

Governor Cox today sent to the Council the name of Mrs. Ernna Falls Schofield, lawyer and social worker, to become a member of the Industrial Accident Board.

The appointment was made under the provision of the law which went into effect on Monday by which the present membership of the board is increased from six to seven members.

Mrs. Schofield is a graduate of the Boston University School of Liberal Arts and the Boston University Law School. She got her early practice of law in Boston, later she was appointed probation officer for women and girls in Springfield. While there she organized the Girls' Club of that city.

Mrs. Schofield's mother was the first woman lawyer in Massachusetts to argue a case before a jury and also first to plead before the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

SCRUTINY IN BANK'S AFFAIRS

Allen Presents Case to Special Grand Jury; Other Closed Banks Next

Investigation of the affairs of the closed Prudential Trust Company was started by Attorney-General Allen's special Grand Jury today.

Affairs of the Tremont Trust Company, Hanover Trust Company and the Cosmopolitan Trust Company will be probed immediately after.

Indictments of officers of the various closed banking institutions will be sought.

The Prudential Trust Company was closed by Bank Commissioner Allen on September 10, 1920. The liabilities are around $3,000,000. John H. H. McNamee, former Mayor of Cambridge, was the president. He will be called to testify.

John E. Hannigan, liquidating agent, was the first witness today.

The grand jury also enlarged on its investigation of the H. V. Greene Company affairs today.

J. M. WORKS, 84, IS RENOMINATED

Returns today indicated the election of Warren C. Daggett, Wilbur F. Lewis and Hiram M. Dearborn, candidates for the House of Representatives in the 24th Middlesex district, Somerville. John M. Works, eighty-four-year-old Grand Army man and senior member of the last General Court, was one of the five defeated candidates.

BEAUTY'S VOICE RAISED FOR T. R. ASKS ALIMONY

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Mrs. William A. Davis, Southern beauty, raised her Paducah, Ky., voice to the consternation of her husband, who is president of the Davis Lumber Company of Chicago, whom she is now suing for divorce.

The first occasion when Mrs. Davis' raised voice caused somb commotion was in the 1913 convention of the Republican party, when it turned the tide of popular applause from former Governor Hadley to Theodore Roosevelt, and led the cheering for a hectic twenty minutes.

The afternoon papers told of the mysterious woman in white who had cheered so enthusiastically, and Mr. Davis, unable to get a seat at the convention, read the reports with interest. Later the husband and wife met at dinner.

"Did you have a good time at the convention?" he asked.

FIND THE WOMAN.

"Something inside of me says I did," replied the wife, grinning as much as any lady may be said to grin.

"There was a woman there who seems to have stirred things up," the husband went on.

"Something inside of me tells me so," replied his wife; and then he noticed for the first time the somewhat dishevled condition of the lady's usually perfect coiffure.

"Lord!" said Mr. Davis.

And now he is saying it again.

ASKS $15,000 A YEAR.

His wife is once more raising her gentle Southern voice and is demanding $15,000 a year alimony. She says her husband got into a rage and left their home at No. 4234 Drexel boulevard. She also charges that he has dissipated several hundred thousand dollars in the past few years and she asks that he be restrained from disposing of a block of stock in the lumber company, which she declares belongs to her.

DANCER PAYS A VOTING BET IN PRISON GARB

Without a flagon of ale, or a tankard of cool brew, or even a tiny cocktail to aid her in the gruelling task of paying her election bets, Miss Rebekah Caubie, dancer of the Tangerine Company at the Shubert Theatre today donned a convict's suit from the Convict Ship Success and dragged a heavy ball and chain the length of Tremont street.

Rebekah bet on O'Brien for District Attorney. Miss Betty Marsh, of Weber and Fields company bet on Joe Pelletier to win the nomination. You know the result.

The stunt to be performed was left to Captain D. H. Smith, commander of the prison ship, oldest vessel afloat. He decreed that the pretty loser should wear one of the convict's suits, which he dug up from o locker somewhere aboard his brig. Miss Rebekah was a good sport and paid her election wager cheerfully, while hundreds looked on.

A few minutes before the convention opened the fingerprints of Governor Cox were taken in the Governor's office by Roscoe C. Hill, head of the fingerprint bureau in the Massachusetts Department of Correction.

FORD ATTACKS COMMISSION IN COAL DELIVERY

Detroit, Sept. 13 (By International News Service).—Henry Ford today issued a formal statement attacking the Interstate Commerce Commission for its failure to see that coal was delivered to the public. He did not refer to the threatened closing of his plants, set for next Saturday.

The statement says in part:

"The present so-called coal crisis, shows up the Interstate Commerce Commission. If this commission was ever useful, it has now outlived its usefulness like the gold standard and Wall Street. In its control of empty coal cars, the Interstate Commerce Commission is playing into the hands of the profiters under the guise of regulations for the public good.

"The same interests who own the public utilities, railroads and mines are using the commission as part of their scheme to fleece the public."

"Through newspaper headlines they spread propaganda about a coal shortage so that everybody starts scrambling for coal. The report that we had bought 4,000,000 tons of coal was an absolute lie and added to this propaganda to keep every consumer scrambling. Furthermore, by squeezing labor and reducing their pay, these same interests cause strikes and throw the railroads into convulsions, immediately cutting down the available car supply with which to transport coal.

"Having convinced the public that there is a shortage, they ration coal to themselves through the commission under the guise of priority for public utilities. These utilities then take advantage of these conditions by paying high prices for coal and in turn raise the rates to the public.

"Though the means may vary from coal strikes, as today, to rubber control, affecting the price of tires, or cotton control, affecting the price of textiles, or to steel control, affecting practically everything else, the game is just the same—the money always flows the same way.

"If the government had desired it could easily have stepped in and given the public all the coal it needed."

Police Heads Want Guns Taken Away From Citizens

New York, Sept. 13.—Limitation of armaments in civilian America was demanded at the national police conference here today.

There are more private citizens toting "guns" in New York and Chicago than in all of Europe combined, it was contended.

The government was condemned for offering army service pistols for public purchase. The use of sawed-off shot-guns is becoming general in the West.

URGES MERGER OF BAY STATE AND 'L' LINES

Consolidation of local lines operating in Chelsea, Revere, Everett, and Malden with that of the Boston Elevated road was urged today by Judge Samuel R. Cutler, city solicitor of Revere, before the Department of Public Utilities at the State House.

The department is investigating the problem of better facilities of transportation between Boston and Chelsea, Revere, Everett and Malden.

Judge Cutler declared the Legislature had authorized such consolidation, and that the Governor favors it. He proposed a system of transfer at City Square, Charlestown, and the extension of the East Boston Tunnel service to Chelsea and Orient Heights.

Senator Andrew A. Cassasa, Joseph Britler, of the Revere Municipal Council, George A. Lancaster also spoke on the subject.

At the request of James H. Jackson, chairman of the trustees of the Elevated and Fred W. Cummings for the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, the board agreed to hear the full problem of local transportation on Wednesday, October 4, at 10:30 p. m.

POLISH BEAUTY COMES TO STAR IN MOVIES

New York, Sept. 13.—Pola Negri, Polish screen star, got her first glimpse of an American city when she arrived on the Majestic bound for Los Angeles to appear in motion pictures. She confessed that she was nervous, but pleased when told she was much more beautiful than her pictures have shown her to be. When she recovered her composure she said:

"My art, that is all I live for. I am so happy to be here."

Miss Negri is a brunette, with gray-blue eyes that twinkle behind long dark lashes.

When she learned her journey to the coast would begin almost at once she gasped and asked:

"How are the operas in Los Angeles, please?"

Mabel Normand, another movie star, also was a passenger, returning from a six weeks' trip abroad, spent chiefly in Paris. After a week in New York she planned to go to the West for a new picture.

Asked which of the American screen actresses she liked best she replied:

"I can only say I do love Charlie Chapple. He is so funny to me, and I met him in Germany, you know."

She was asked about theatrical conditions in Europe, and gracefully sidestepped the query.

It is a fine joke they have played on the eminent young screen player, who has come all the way across the ocean under the impression she is to have a Winter in New York. For Miss Negri had not been told she would proceed almost immediately to Los Angeles to begin work on her first picture.

And when she was asked what she knew about the idea of a possible insurance policy guarding her film company against her falling in love and marrying while here, Miss Negri smiled and displayed what are without question two of the prettiest rows of teeth in existence, and said she hadn't the slightest idea of falling in love for at least four or five years. After that, she said, she didn't care much what happened.

FIND FLOATING BOOZE MINE AT ARMY BASE

Two bottles of moonshine concealed under one of the wharves at army base, South Boston, attached to strings tied to posts, were discovered today. A search of all posts is now being made, but not by the army.
